Soaring Costs Stall Museum

'Remedial Action' Awaited

By JACK FREY
Legislative Reporter

Cost of the provincial museum complex has soared so far out of line that further construction has been delayed until remedial action can be taken.

Premier Bennett warned Friday that unless some way is found to curb spiralling costs, work on the project might have to be spaced out over a longer period of time.

Latest cost figures show that the museum and archives buildings, originally estimated to cost $6,500,000, might run as high as $8,000,000—$1,500,000 more than anticipated.

QUESTION OF RESTRAINT

"This is not a question of money, but one of restraint," said the premier.

He said the government is willing to delay any project but the Peace and Columbia River power developments in order to halt spiralling construction costs in British Columbia.

A cutback in government construction projects could probably affect the future of a new mental hospital in Victoria as well as the government-owned courthouses which have already been started in Duncan.

"If construction costs go too high, the industry has only itself to blame," Mr. Bennett said. "We asked industry and labor to exercise restraint—it is now not for government only to talk but to act."

SPACED OUT

The premier said the treasury board will probably be asked next week to make more money available for the museum.

But he warned that if revised cost estimates for the main museum construction contract are too high the work would be "spaced out."

This would mean that British Columbia's contribution to the

Victoria's Centennial Ball Friday night at Government House transported the capital back to the early days of the Crown Colony, with hundreds of scintillating, exciting, century-old costumes. # Troop-Laden Plane Crashes Into Slope

GENE AUTRY, Okla. (UPI)—

A chartered four-engine Electra prop-jet plane carrying 92 soldiers and eight crewmen on a flight from Fort Nord, Calif., to Fort Benning, Ga., crashed and burned Friday night during a driving rain in the Oklahoma community of Gene Autry on the air route between Oklahoma City and Dallas, Texas.

First reports indicated most of those aboard had been killed. But there were some survivors.

The plane smashed into the south slope of Arbuckle Mountain, very rugged terrain with an elevation of about 900 feet. Wreckage of the plane was strewn about the mountain. The small number of survivors were badly injured, some with burns.

VERY FEW SURVIVORS

A spokesman of the Oklahoma Highway Patrol said, "From all indications, there will be very few survivors."

Rescue equipment from as far away as Texas was rushed to the scene. A unit of the Oklahoma National Guard in Ardmore was called out, U.S. Route 77 in the crash vicinity was jammed up for several miles.

A dispatcher in the sheriff's office in Ardmore said he had talked to a deputy at the crash scene and been told there were between five and 10 survivors.

"Get all the ambulances and station wagons and anything that can haul a body," the deputy said.

SAW A FLASH

The ill-fated plane was approaching the Ardmore airport to refuel when the crash occurred.

Federal Aviation Agency of officials in Ardmore reported they had seen a flash northeast of the airport about the time of the crash, roughly 6:30 p.m. P.S.T.

East-West Police In Gunfight

From Reuters-AP

BERLIN (CP) — East and West German border guards fought a gun battle across the Berlin Wall Friday night as two Communist guards dashed over to the West.

As the two guards crawled through barbed-wire fences toward the wall, the East German police fired at them.

A nearby West Berlin policeman shot back. The two reached West Berlin safely.

Smithers Again

SMITHERS (CP)—The village of Smithers' water supply has again been threatened by fire. Chlorinating equipment at the temporary water-pumping station, set up after the permanent pumping station was destroyed by fire during the Easter weekend, was put out of commission by another blaze Friday.

Beep-Beep Big Eyes Can't Sleep

SEATTLE (AP) — Beep-beep. It went. For many nights from a dark wooded area next to Lake McDonald, southeast of Seattle.

Neighbors wondered. Reports were made to police of red fireballs swooshing through the sky and silvery domed things clanking and grinding in the woods.

Flying saucer fans, with tales of visitors from outer space, called James Nelson, whose home is next to the lake.

A search was planned. Men and women armed with flashlights crept through the woods Thursday night.

They converged at a tree and shone their flashlights—right into the big saucer eyes of a noisy baby owl. It went beep, beep.

HOUSTON (UPI) — A promising new kind of artificial heart Friday took over even more of the workload of the faltering heart of an Illinois coal miner. But the patient's wife was told her husband might be unconscious as long as a week.

Marcel L. De Rudder, 65, of Westville, Ill., was still unconscious more than 24 hours after the artificial heart was attached to him. Famous heart surgeon Dr. Michael E. DeBakey said the man may have suffered "temporary brain damage."

DeBakey told Mrs. Edna DeRudder her husband might not regain consciousness for a week.

SAW DOCTOR

A bulletin said Mrs. DeRudder conferred with Dr. DeBakey and saw her husband, although he was unconscious.

"The patient's condition remains unchanged," the bulletin said.

Dr. W. W. Akers, member of a Rice University group that developed the artificial heart, finally left the hospital after 48 hours at De Rudder's bedside. He said he had encountered no problems with the artificial heart.

"It's doing remarkably well," he said.

It was thought that the temporary brain damage DeBakey

Influence Peddling

DUPUIS CONVICTED

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Yvon Dupuis, former federal minister without portfolio, was convicted Friday of influence-peddling and ordered to pay a $5,000 fine or go to jail for a year.

Mr. Justice Evender Veilleux gave the former Liberal cabinet minister 30 days in which to pay the fine.

A court of Queen's Bench jury delivered the verdict after deliberating an hour.

There was no immediate word from Paul Martineau, former Conservative mines minister who defended Dupuis, whether an appeal would be made.

Dupuis was charged with having accepted a bribe of $10,000 in 1961 in return for his influence in obtaining a provincial racetrack permit for Roch Deslauriers, a St. Johns, Que., chiropractor. The permit was never granted.

Dupuis resigned in January, 1963 following allegations of influence-peddling against him.

150 DOCUMENTS

In his closing argument, Crown Prosecutor Jean Blenvenue reviewed points of his case against Dupuis.

He said he had not only established the version of the events given by Mr. Deslauriers but also the depositions of some 45 other witnesses and the veracity of 150 documents and other evidence.

DESCRIBED AS 'FANTASY'

The testimony of Dupuis, who was principal witness for the defence, was in contradiction with other testimony and amounted to fantasy, he said.

Mr. Blenvenue said the idea of the crime took birth in the mind of Dupuis and led to his sudden change of fortune.

CONCORDANCE

There was, he said, a concordance between bank notes deposited May 8 and 9, 1961, to the account of the Science University Co., of which Dupuis was president, and the bills which made up the $10,000 which Mr. Deslauriers had obtained May 8 and 9, saying they were to give to Dupuis in order to obtain a racetrack permit.

INTERMEDIARY

The Crown prosecutor recalled the evidence of Eric Kierans, Quebec minister of health, and Guy Favreau, president of the Privy Council, and other witnesses who testified Dupuis had admitted to them he had received the $10,000, though only as an intermediary between Mr. Deslauriers and the then Quebec revenue minister, the late Paul Earl.

Mr. Blenvenue said the jury should declare Dupuis guilty of the crime of influence-peddling if its members were convinced he committed the crime.

Seven Days is not scheduled for this Sunday night. A monthly program document, has taken its place as scheduled.

If the Halifax confirmation means, "as it appears to," Mr. Lettman said, that the CBC board is going to support CBC president Alphonse Ouimet and does not intend to reinstate the hosts, "I have no alternative but to stop producing the program."

"Moreover, I would expect the whole production staff of Seven Days will walk out and that Seven Days will go off the air before completion of its season."

Mountie Charged In Holdup

STELLARTON, N.S. (CP)—

An RCMP corporal, with the force for 13 years, was charged here Friday with the $8,900 armed robbery of a bank in nearby Trenton Monday.

Cpl. Harry Sutherland, 32, a member of the Nova Scotia H division headquarters administrative staff in Halifax, was arrested briefly before Magistrate W. A. Richardson, then remanded in custody to the county jail in Pictou. He will appear Monday in magistrate's court in New Glasgow.

Dressed in civilian clothes, wearing sunglasses and appearing nervous, the Mountie was escorted into the magistrate's office in the town hall by Staff Sgt. J. G. Skinner of Truro, who laid the charge, and Sgt. D. S. Moody, head of the New Glasgow detachment.

NO SPECTATORS

Sutherland was not handcuffed. The two men flanking him were stern and snapped at photographers that they wanted no pictures taken. There were no spectators watching the scene outside the town hall.

Sutherland was silent as the magistrate read the charge and remanded him. There were only seven spectators inside the office.

"As soon as the Mounties took him in the office they slammed the door," said a reporter. "It seemed only a few seconds that they were in there, then they came out again."

LONE BANDIT

During the robbery a lone bandit wearing a stocking over his face held up a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia and held five employees at gunpoint while a teller scooped $8,900 from a cash drawer into a satchel.

RCMP said Friday the bulk of the stolen money had been recovered in the New Glasgow area.

Sutherland, a native of Plaster Rock, N.B., and married, was stationed in Halifax for the last five years and prior to that with detachments in Stewiack and New Glasgow.

Court Holds the Last Ace

Four of Clubs Won But Yee Ning Was Wild

ASHCROFT, B.C. (UPI)—Two men have been charged with cheating in a $8,000 poker game, under a rarely used section of the criminal code.

A businessman told the court he lost a poker hand because the dealer gave another player a card from the bottom of the deck.

Yee Ning said he had bet $1,200 on the turn of the last card in the game of five-card stud poker and his bet had been called by Fernand Theberge, 42.

Yee claimed the dealer, James Anderson, 33, then dealt Theberge the four of clubs which was sufficient to give Theberge a winning hand but Yee said the four of clubs had been on the bottom of the deck after the cards were cut before the hand started.

Court was told Yee and four other businessmen lost a total of $3,000 in the game, played in a motel room last December.

Evidence was also given that a total of 24 decks of cards were found in the accused men's car and in the motel room, 10 of which were marked.

Theberge and Anderson pleaded not guilty. Decision is to be handed down April 29.

CBC Program Claims Questioned by Watson

OTTAWA (CP)—Seven Days co-host Patrick Watson cast doubt Friday on CBC management claims the television show will be bigger and better next season.

He told the Commons broadcasting committee a budget cut of $1,000 a week, management's willingness to drop himself, co-host Laurier LaPierre and executive producer Douglas Leithman and inhibiting directives make him doubt the management claim.

He was asked by Marcel Prud'Homme (L—Montreal St.

Denis) whether understanding is possible in the dispute with humbly on both sides.

"I fear that up to the present there is too much evidence that some people on both sides have completely lost confidence in each other," Mr. Watson replied. "I think it's too late now."

PETERED OUT
Lewis Brand (PC—Saskatoon) suggested the program close-up petered out as a force and was dropped after starting out as a vital and stimulating show. Was that the sort of thing happening to Seven Days?

Mr. Watson replied that close-up is a good analogy. The basic reasons for close-up petering out were the same as those coming out with respect to Seven Days.

DIFFERENT VIEWS
At another point, he said management and producers don't see the world in the same terms. Many internal problems arose from lack of communication with CBC President J. Alphonse Oulmet.

Mr. Oulmet had known of the internal troubles for many years but didn't often ask for advice on them. Furthermore, there was an extraordinary amount of filtering as problems made their way up the ladder from producers to top management.

Mr. Watson still was being questioned when the committee adjourned its third session on the Seven Days dispute until Monday. Still waiting in the wings to be heard is Mr. LaPierre.

New York

News Blackout Appears Near

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor John V. Lindsay failed Friday in a last-minute effort to win a stay in the merger of three New York dailies and head off a strike against the newspapers.

As a result, at least a partial newspaper blackout Monday appeared inevitable. A publishers' spokesman, Max Meyer, said the chances of publishing as scheduled Monday amount to "none whatsoever."

TALES BREAK DOWN
Lindsay summoned publishers and union leaders after key negotiations broke down with the International Typographical Union (AFL-CIO). Chief issue was above-the-union pay for 400 printers facing loss of their jobs in the merger.

Meyer, president of the New World Journal Tribune Inc., said Lindsay proposed that peace talks continue and that there be a delay in the merger of the evening Journal-American and the World-Telegram and Sun and the morning Herald Tribune.

PRINT FINAL TODAY
Final editions of the Herald Tribune, American and the Scripps—Howard World—Telegram are scheduled to go to press today. They were to be replaced Monday by the new afternoon World Journal.

The Sunday Herald Tribune and the Sunday Journal-American were to be put to bed for the last time this weekend, to be replaced May 1 by the Sunday World Journal Tribune. The Herald Tribune, retaining its name, was to become Monday the morning edition of the merged corporation.

'Union Wants Strike Vote'

VANCOUVER (CP)—John M. Billings, president of Forest Industrial Relations, said Friday that attempts at negotiation for a new master agreement in the B.C. coast forest industry have "failed because the union wants a strike vote before it gets down to serious business."

Mr. Billings, whose organization negotiates for coast forest operators, was commenting on an announcement that conciliation proceedings have broken off between FIR and the International Woodworkers of America (CLO).

Pearson Qualifies For Pension

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson would like to lose about 10 pounds but a sweet tooth stands in his way.

But he says he enjoys being prime minister. Although he now qualifies for the old-age pension, he talks as though he'll be around for some time.

Mr. Pearson, 68 today, talked in an interview before making his weekly visit to Governor-General Georges Vanier, whose birthday also is today. He is 78.

Bank Runs Short in Trial

Refunds Cause Spree

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—It was Bonanza day here Friday.

While one bank reported it was running short of money and issued a plea for deposits, Trail businessmen rubbed their hands in glee as they raked in the money faster than they could count it.

The frenzy started early Friday when an estimated $1,000,000 was put into circulation as employees of the giant Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. received refunds from their supplementary retirement fund.

The option of withdrawing from the fund was part of a recent contract signed by Cominco on the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (U.M.W.).

A union spokesman said the employees who chose to withdraw from the fund received cheques averaging about $800. And many did not keep their cheques long.

Banks reported brisk cheque-cashing business. One was in danger of running out of money near closing time and appealed to customers to make deposits.

Car dealers reported brisk sales of new and used cars and good business was reported by stores and restaurants.

Spokesmen for hotels, restaurants and lounges in this city of about 12,000 were bracing for a heavy onslaught by Friday night shoppers.

Four Battalions Block Escape

SAIGON (AP)—Four battalions, backed by artillery and air squadrons, blocked Viet Cong escape routes in foothills of South Viet Nam's central coast near Quang Ngai Friday, killing 237 Communists in an operation that began Thursday.

A Viet Cong defector pointed out the Viet Cong camp, believed also to have contained some of North Viet Nam's 21st regular regiment. A spokesman said American and South Vietnamese losses were light.

Bravo, Mr. Bennett

BRITISH COLUMBIANS will applaud the premier, Mr. W. A. C. Bennett, irrespective of their politics, for his announced intention of seeking from Ottawa a formula which will make it possible for B.C. shipyards to bid competitively for federal contracts.

In the premier's own words, he will approach Prime Minister Pearson "in a friendly way" during the federal-provincial conference to be held in Victoria in June.

Mr. Bennett is no doubt right in adopting the "soft sell" tactics he proposes, at least in the initial approach.

But the formidable obstacles in the way of an agreement on policy which would allow B.C. shipyards to compete with the St. Lawrence industry are not likely to be overcome by recourse to gentle words alone. Even the premier's well-known powers of persuasion are not likely to move a man to whom the Eastern Canada vote is so vital, particularly in Quebec.

He will need the full weight of argument from every quarter where it can be mustered, including the B.C. representation in the House of Commons, no matter what the political color.

B.C. shipbuilders face a dismal, if not ruinous, future with federal contracts denied them. This denial is the result of the Liberal government's decision to discard the formula which allowed regional bidding on federal contracts. In simple terms, that formula provided a proportion of government contracts for both East and West.

But B.C.'s higher wage scale and the heavier freight charges which must be paid by Pacific coast shipbuilders, as compared with Atlantic and St. Lawrence yards, create an impossible handicap for this province in bidding on a national, competitive basis.

No one would seriously suggest that Pacific shipyard workers accept a cut in wages to the level paid in Quebec, for example, which are a dollar an hour lower than in this prosperous province. Even that unlikely remedy would not provide a solution; for the freight differential would remain.

The only feasible formula, it appears, is a return to regional contract bidding.

Admittedly such a proposal will not be popular in the East. But the question might reasonably be asked: What is more important to the future of the nation, the survival of the West Coast shipbuilding industry or a handful of votes for the government from Quebec?

Car Safety

IN THE COURSE of his campaign for safer cars, the crusading American lawyer Ralph Nader has pictured highway safety organizations as working in league with the automotive industry to emphasize the driver's part in road accidents and thus to minimize vehicular deficiencies.

In this connection, although perhaps not as a direct result of his allegations, the National Safety Council in the United States has just answered 12 questions "that are among those most frequently being asked . . . as a result of the high level of interest today in traffic safety and—specifically—in the role of the vehicle." Heading the list: Why does the council spend so much time on the driver instead of the car?

The council (which says incidentally, in reply to another of the questions, that it receives only about $250,000 of its annual $7,000,000 budget from the car manufacturers) has an answer that seems entirely reasonable. Its point in brief is that while safer cars and safer roads are imperative, reaching these goals takes time and meanwhile the many millions of motorists have to cope every day with the existing deficiencies. Thus the need for emphasis on "the one thing the general public can most easily do for itself: drive with every possible skill that can be acquired and always use seat belts or shoulder harnesses."

And this, of course, the first part of it at least, will remain true as long as traffic continues to flow on the roads. Safer cars will not mean safer drivers.

But it is a thought, nevertheless, that the campaign for more built-in safety and protection in cars which has so gripped the public mind on this continent will surely be of some effect in improving driving habits too. For probably nothing in automotive history has served to turn as much attention and interest on the whole traffic-accident problem as the current debate centering on the need for cars that eliminate or reduce some of the present perils.

Matter of Tradition

THE USE OF A STYLIZED maple leaf, broken up into 11 triangles to represent each of the eleven governments as the official symbol of Canada's Centennial of Confederation, has hurt the susceptibilities of many older people to whom in this matter tradition is all important.

The maple leaf, it is true, has been adopted as the national flag of Canada and sooner or later it will eventually become the accepted symbol of the country. But for 98 years of Confederation, or all but two of the years being celebrated, the official Canadian emblem has been the Canadian Coat of Arms, a colorful heraldic device that is soaked in the tradition and life of the country.

In the case of British Columbia the centennial device had to be created which would serve the double purpose of covering the union of the colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia, as well as the founding of the Confederation.

For the former, the Provincial Centennial Committee has chosen very suitably the dogwood, which is the official floral emblem of the province and this device has been added to the federal stylized maple leaf with the figures "100" separating them.

The result has not pleased everyone but most people have accepted the situation as a fait accompli. From photographs taken of the decorations at Government House for the Friday night centennial ball, it was noticed that the centennial symbol showed in a revised form. The stylized maple leaf in the vice-regal home was removed in favor of the Canadian Coat of Arms.

While there may be ingenuity in the stylized maple leaf, and there is certainly simplicity for any grade two child could draw one, the decision of those in high authority to slam the door on the rich traditions of the past can have little more than one interpretation. And obviously it is not appreciated everywhere.

The Answer of a 'Good European'

By MAX FREEDMAN from Bonn

As a result of the conference between representatives of the United States, British and West German governments, it is now clear that France will be unable to play off Germany against the rest of the NATO alliance.

The temptation was strong for Germany to treat her own bargaining position by at least stalling for time. After all, West Germany is caught in a tangle of converging pressures. The continued strain on the pound sterling, together with her limited manpower resources, has forced Britain to think of an early and drastic reduction in the size of the British military commitment in Germany. The needs of the Viet Nam war may compel further withdrawal of U.S. troops from Germany. Thus there are strains in the partnership with Britain and America at the very time that Germany is being asked to work with President de Gaulle in the spirit of the Franco-German alliance to create a "European" leadership for the NATO community.

It is no small tribute to de Gaulle's diplomacy to admit that he has obtained a great deal of favorable publicity in Europe for his plan to limit the United States' role in the shaping of NATO policy. This is not seen as a campaign motivated solely by anti-American feeling. Rather it is described as an attempt, perhaps long overdue, to give Europe the power and initiative inside the alliance suited to its present strength and not to its former weakness. The appeal of such an argument, when put with all of de Gaulle's towering eloquence, should not be discounted. Once again Germany had to choose between the "Anglo-Saxon powers" and her European partners.

In making the choice to go along with the views of the British and American governments, the German foreign minister, Herr Schroeder, flatly rejected the terms of the debate as requiring a choice between NATO's allies. He said the choice should be defined not in terms of geography but in terms of the commitment which the members of the alliance are prepared to discharge in good faith. His was the answer of a "good European," as he himself said. For there can be no encouraging or stable future for NATO if it is to be forced to choose between artificial loyalties to a European community as against a larger Atlantic community. The existence of such a dilemma shows that the very concept of the NATO unit has lost its compulsive force.

If Herr Schroeder were a better German politician and were less devoted to NATO, he would have taken a different line — perhaps one roughly similar to that advocated by Herr Strauss. It is the contention of Herr Strauss, the former defence minister, that NATO needs Germany at least as much as Germany needs NATO. In such a relationship, therefore, it is wise and proper for a country like Germany to reassess her obligations to NATO without incurring the odium of being false to her obligations of seeking a position of privileged membership in the alliance.

Herr Schroeder did not answer this argument; he disclaimed it as unworthy of an answer. He treated it as a mask to conceal a hidden German design to win more power inside NATO and to do so in a way which would prevent other members from knowing what was happening until it was too late to stop it.

It can be reported that Mr. John McCloy, the United States representative, and Sir Frank Roberts, the British representative, were profoundly impressed by Herr Schroeder's courage and by his willingness to consider the future of NATO without any sinister bias of national vanity or any jockeying for positions of power. There have not been many examples of this kind of courage in recent international conferences.

It is also necessary to remove one misconception which has apparently been given wide publicity. Judging by press reports sent back from Washington, Defence Secretary McNamara is open to the charge of having created a serious breach in American-German relations by failing to notify West Germany in advance of the decision to move 15,000 special personnel to Viet Nam. Naturally, West Germany would have preferred full consultation before this decision was announced.

Viet Nam Reappraisal Needed

By MARQUE CHILDS

WHETHER at long last it is possible to examine realistically the deepening American involvement in Viet Nam is being considered at the highest level. Factional quarrels among the Vietnamese, so inflammatory as to threaten prosecution of the war, are compelling a hard look.

What seems extraordinary to critics on the outside is that the Johnson administration has never looked objectively at the whole picture. On that fateful November 22 nearly three years ago, Lyndon Johnson, when he became president, inherited among grave and pressing problems a commitment to South Viet Nam.

He also inherited the apparatus of advice and power confirming and enlarging that commitment. For more than six months the president was so absorbed in problems which seemed more pressing that he could not give full attention to Viet Nam. When he could devote himself to it he found the Kennedy advisers he had taken over virtually unanimous in saying that expansion of the number of American "advisers" and a great increase in military aid was the only solution.

A sequence of events beginning shortly after President John F. Kennedy's inauguration foreboded this view. In March, 1961, Kennedy took a critical decision, with much military and diplomatic opposition, to neutralize Laos. Opposition on the "I told you so" line was acceptable. Two factors tended to reinforce this view.

One consequence was that the domestic political side and the diplomatic-military front it gave greater support to those who were saying that the president must show strength. He could not afford any more compromises. Therefore, only a continuing hard line in Viet Nam was acceptable. Two factors tended to reinforce this view.

The brilliant professors whom Kennedy had brought into the White House were fascinated by the complex of power building up around Viet Nam. Men like McGeorge Bundy and Walt Rostow often seemed to be trying to outgeneral the generals. As a result, Kennedy and later President Johnson found that the political perspective, putting Viet Nam in the context of Asia and America's role in the world, as against the military-power picture, was undeployed.

The second factor was the over optimistic and even naive official reporting on the course of the conflict. This was true particularly when Frederick E. Olson of the Liberal and Country Nolting, Jr., was ambassador and Gen. Paul D. Harkins the military commander. The reports on the strategic hamlets—fenced enclosures into which South Vietnamese were herded—gave a glowing picture of progress with happy peasants welcoming this protection. The program was a disastrous failure.

Unhappy with Nolting, an opportunity arose to replace him. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, according to Kennedy's biographers, held firm for Henry Cabot Lodge as a replacement. For Rusk from the beginning Viet Nam represented an emotional involvement and this has deepened with the years. He had been strongly influenced by his service in the state department as assistant secretary for Far East affairs beginning in 1950.

Rusk, too, took a consistently optimistic view, stating three years ago in a speech in New York that he saw a "steady movement toward a constitutional system resting upon popular consent," the strategic hamlets were producing "excellent results," "morale in the countryside has begun to rise."

This was when Ngo Dinh Diem was tightening his dictatorial hold and the Buddhists were burning themselves alive in protest. Having won two primaries, New Hampshire and Oregon, in the spring of 1964, Lodge left his post in Saigon to come back for the Republican national convention where he was powerless to do anything to stop the nomination of Barry Goldwater. Little more than a year later Johnson asked him to return as ambassador. Both in his response to the overthrow of Diem and in Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's troubles some observers have put part of the blame for the political upheaval on Lodge's misjudgments.

Even a brief glimpse of the sequence of events leading to the present disarray seems to show that President Johnson had never himself made an entirely independent judgment on Viet Nam. In the speech of his old friend and Senate colleague, Richard Russell of Georgia, he has been given an opportunity to do just this. Noting the anti-American tone of the recent demonstrations, Russell suggested the need for an "agonizing reappraisal" of policy with the possibility of withdrawal of American military and economic aid.

The crucial decision to escalate the war was made in early June, 1965, when there were 54,000 Americans in Viet Nam. From mid-June to the end of last year the increase was to 181,392. The current buildup is at the average rate of 5,000 a week. That movement may be irreversible, come what may in Viet Nam. But influential voices are saying stop, look and listen.

Subject of Controversy

Australia's Untapped Wealth

By DAVID PRICE
from Canberra

THE wealth that lies under the ground in the undeveloped north of Australia is becoming the subject of increasing tension between the state and federal governments.

In the vast area of the country north of the Tropic of Capricorn, large mineral deposits have been discovered, including iron ore, bauxite, lead, tin, tungsten, zinc, chrome, manganese, oil, copper and natural gas. Geologists are convinced that other, and possibly richer, mineral fields are there, and prospecting teams are operating in the northern areas of Queensland and Western Australia and in the Northern Territory.

But the reason for the unrest is that it is largely foreign-owned companies which are operating the mining and processing plants, and are now sending out the prospectors. Most of the capital is coming from the United States; although Australian companies have holdings in the mining consortiums their interests are relatively small.

The attitude of the federal government, a right-wing coalition of the Liberal and Country parties—is that finance for mining operations should come from private enterprise, but that it will assist with such things as surveys, transport services and water conservation.

The states are pressing for more financial assistance. They point out, for example, that $448,000,000 will be needed within the next few years to develop iron ore deposits already discovered. The deposits are described by Charles Court, Western Australia's minister for industrial development, as sufficient to supply the world's blast furnaces for the next 100 years. Court, the most dynamic of the men concerned with opening up the north, believes it is the nation's responsibility, but says he refuses to apologize for helping to bring in foreign capital. "If we did not bring it in these great natural resources would lie dormant."

Court is hopeful for the future: "The light has started to dawn. People are beginning to realize that this is not a mendicant area which always has its hand out for something for nothing." The premier of Queensland,

Elected and Electors

THE British Columbia government is chosen by the people of this province to carry out the people's collective business and is, in comparison to its predecessors, doing a good job; but the citizens of this vast land are being faced with constant changes, and if the government is to keep up with our affairs in such a state of flux, it will have to adapt itself to the situation like any other progressive enterprise. It is not possible by the method we now employ to "communicate upward," or from the electors to the elected in an efficient manner.

My family has had experience in this matter and after being referred from one to another of a number of departments, we finally were forced to contact the minister of one department and he dealt with our problem for which we are very grateful. However there are other people who have not been able to relate themselves to their government and although agencies are available to the public, the public by and large is not able to use them efficiently.

There is a saying, "the oil goes to the squeaky wheel," but it is not all wheels that squeak, and actually we can not substitute expediency for efficiency.

The people as free citizens in B.C. have a right to demand an ear at government level, and are paying for all the services they get, and since it's the people's business, the government should keep in touch with the people continuously, not just hit or miss.

In order to expedite the will of the people, and in order to serve them properly, we should have an agency in the government, which agency should have as its function and purpose the job of carrying out instructions, submitted in writing by individuals or groups, relating to investigations or searches of any department in the government. If this government, or any government, can not stand such close scrutiny by the people, let them come out and admit it.

No ordinary individual is expected by any reasonable person to have at his fingertips the vast store of information, compiled over 100 years by the government; how does a person with a problem covering several departments know the fine division of responsibilities of these departments? He can't, and yet he is entitled to help from his government since he pays for it. The legislature has a greater duty to the people than that of self-propagation.

Juland

The recent death of Count Felix von Luckner brings to mind his biographical account of the battle of Juland. Luckner apparently seeks to give his readers the impression that as dawn broke on June 1, 1918, the German fleet expected to find the British, under Admiral Jellicoe, drawn up in battle array for a finish fight, but, alas, the British had chosen to withdraw.

This is completely wrong. Any student of naval history knows that the only part of the German navy that showed willingness to engage at Juland, under any thing like equal terms, were their battle cruisers under von Hipper during the run to the south. And that was with the full knowledge that Admiral Scheer, with the entire German High Sea Fleet, lay just over the horizon, steaming full tilt to support.

After the two main fleets met, and Scheer found that Jellicoe had cleverly succeeded in deploying the British Grand Fleet between the Germans and their base, the entire pattern of German behavior showed one objective—to escape. Scheer's near-panic signal to his battle cruisers to "ram if necessary" to enable the main force to extricate itself, also indicates this.

A merciful (for them) haze, and oncoming darkness, enabled the German fleet to escape, not

Yukon Defence

Would it not be possible that there are many ex-Yukoners living in Victoria and some who have a real interest in the Yukon like ourselves who would be interested in sending a dollar or more to the Yukon Defence Force at Whitehorse to get a Yukon Victory Bond to help the Yukon cause.

Our family are all in Whitehorse and we love that interesting and beautiful land and it's a pity that Edmonton should be allowed to sell by misrepresentation the Klondike and so perhaps rob people of a knowledge of the authentic Klondike and perhaps miss a trip to that really beautiful and interesting part of our land.

Belmont Building

The Belmont Building is a lovely edifice, and now there are rumors it is to be destroyed.

Can these be true? I am told it was originally built for an apartment building. The site is marvellous for that purpose and will always be so, at least while there is a harbor and the Parliament Buildings here.

Would the people of Canada not save money, as well as have something beautiful, if the Belmont Building was changed back to an apartment building?

Viet Nam

Despite world opinion, the U.S.A. seems determined to wipe out North Viet Nam with saturation bombing. From latest reports B-52s had dropped half a million pounds of bombs on a valley leading to South Viet Nam. The result was the mountains were blown to pieces and filled the valley for all time.

In the Colonist, Defence Secretary Mr. McNamara is reported to have said he has been forced to drop bombs on North and South Viet Nam 50,000 tons of bombs during March and promised that for 1966 600,000 tons of bombs will fall. It seems from those figures that cities will soon be targets with saturation bombings it is possible to witness the holocaust of Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

What a burden of guilt for future generations of the U.S.A. to carry. As a puzzled U.S.A. soldier, during the riots in Saigon said, "If they don't want us why are we here?" Evidently he is unaware of the devastation Viet Nam is undergoing as they are being rescued for democracy.

Socialism

The writer of this is not accustomed to expressing his political opinion in newspapers, but he thinks that the time has come that somebody should warn British Columbians and all Canadians for that matter, against a socialistic government.

I agree wholeheartedly with Mr. Strachan when he says: "If anybody asks about election issues, there are only two policies which, if implemented, would change the whole life of the province."

The writer has no doubt that this is true. The question is: Should we, the citizens of this province, enjoy the life Mr. Strachan and his socialistic ideas intend to provide if the implementation of his policies should ever become a reality.

There are thousands of Canadians who luckily escaped their socialistic governed countries who came to Canada in order to enjoy the liberties this wonderful country has established. Mr. Strachan may rest assured that these people do not at all long for his leadership nor do they wish to experience the realization of his socialistic policies.

The results of socialism are best known to those who were accustomed to adjusting their lives of socialistic regimes—and these results were everything but satisfactory—as a fact, they were dreadful.

This should give Canadians something to seriously think about before they decide to help Mr. Strachan and his party to power.

Teacher Tells Court

He Came to Scare Mice

EAST BERLIN (Reuters)—A pretty 22-year-old teacher has been sentenced to 20 months' hard labor by an East German court for committing adultery with her favorite pupil on her wedding night.

Newspaper reports of the trial said the teacher, identified only as Liane, allowed herself to be seduced by the 13-year-old boy in her bedroom at the school only a few hours after her wedding.

The teacher was found guilty on the charge of "continual unchastity with a minor."

The reports said the affair with the boy, called Peter, began during a holiday camping expedition she organized on an island near the north coast.

One night as Liane lay "restlessly in her tent trying to sleep on a moonless night, the boy Peter crept into the tent and whispered, 'I have come to frighten the mice away.'"

"Go to bed. There are no mice here," the teacher was alleged to have told him.

Milk Sales Show Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Commercial milk sales rose two per cent to 121,188,800 quarts in February from a year earlier, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Friday. Increases were reported for all provinces except Manitoba.

"The teacher with the pretty name and the pretty face" told the court she favored the boy because he was the strongest physically, but the weakest in intellect.

The reports said the boy, despite his age, was five feet, eight inches tall and "broad as a man."

They said Liane made an excuse to return to her school immediately after her wedding, and spent the night with the boy. Whether she discussed the

'Jeep' Wagoneer competes in Canada's roughest rally

Starting April 30, the 'Jeep' rally team of Peter Lerch and Blair Bunch will drive this V-8 'Jeep' Wagoneer in the longest, toughest International Championship Rally held in Canada: the Shell-4000. It's 4000 miles of rugged driving, from Vancouver to Quebec City. It attracts some of the world's most experienced rally drivers.

Why is KAISER JEEP OF CANADA in this grueling competition? To prove the toughness of 'Jeep' vehicles on some of Canada's worst roads. And to show that the 'Jeep' Wagoneer with 2-wheel drive and its big new V-8 engine compares with any car on the highway.

Only the best made cars will finish this rugged course. Over 1500 miles of it runs on dirt roads. And the rules forbid any major repairs after the competition starts. Last year only 37 out of 64 cars made it.

The 'Jeep' Wagoneer looks like a "natural" for this year's rally. Why not? Combining 'Jeep' toughness with station wagon utility, it was made for our rough and tumble driving and Canadian weather conditions! And it's good enough for this Shell 4000... shouldn't you give it a test drive?

Treasure Still Tied Up

By DON ANGUS

HALIFAX (CP)—A 240-year-old treasure recovered from the sunken hulk of a French pay ship remained ensnared amid legal details Friday as the Nova Scotia Supreme Court renewed an injunction prohibiting its disposal.

Mr. Justice L. D. Currie granted a continuance of an interim injunction issued April 7 following claims by five Cape Breton divers to 8,800 gold and silver coins taken from the wreck of the 18th century vessel Le Chameau.

The Orbit group, headed by Robert D. MacDonald of Glace Bay, claims a share of the treasure recovered by 23-year-old Louisbourg diver Alex Storm. Storm and two other divers located the broken remains of the ill-fated vessel off the coast of Louisbourg last fall, but waited seven months before announcing their discovery.

MacDonald says Storm was a member of the Orbit partnership when he found the treasure, despite written withdrawal from the agreement prior to the discovery.

all about the holdup, a Scotland Yard official said Friday.

Police, meanwhile, ordered a tightening in the hunt for members of the robbery gang still missing. Including two suspected leaders and two who escaped from prison after being found guilty of taking part.

ARRESTED

The offer to tell police the details of the robbery was reportedly made by James Edward White, 46, arrested Thursday in the quiet south coast town of Littlestone, Kent.

White, arraigned Friday, was quoted by the official as having told police after his arrest: "I am only too pleased to tell you all about it. I was on that job. I was in the coach when the money was nicked (stolen)."

TWO YEARS

He said he intended giving himself up this weekend.

The magistrate presiding over the court, in the Buckinghamshire village of Linslade, three miles from the scene of the robbery, ordered White held pending further investigation.

White's arrest came two years and eight months after a gang of masked and armed men robbed a Scottish mail train about 40 miles northwest of London, and made off with the biggest cash haul in crime history, most of which still is missing.

White was arraigned on two charges—conspiring to rob the mail train and robbing the chief postal officer on the train of 120 mailbags while armed with offensive weapons.

Taxation Deadline Only Week Away

Remember those awesome-looking forms the federal government sent out earlier this year? Well, you'd better send them back soon, if you don't want to be nailed for income tax evasion.

April 30 is the deadline for the annual headache, but a good many people will end up with troubles long after deadline.

Remember arithmetic? It's something you learn in the primary grades. Only trouble is, many people seem to forget how to add and subtract when it comes time to make out income tax returns.

OMISSIONS
Back in Ottawa there's a big computer which does know how to add and subtract, and it will find your errors.

And then you'll get billed for a few more dollars, or, if you're the lucky type, you might even get a few back.

In making out income tax forms, people seem to sin more by omission than commission, the income tax department office here says.

Omissions Biggest Headache

Like, claiming a $1,000 deduction for your wife, and then not naming her, or putting in her address.

Or claiming for charitable donations, then not submitting receipts.

Or not counting your old age pension as income.

DEDUCT DUES

One way is by claiming union or association dues within the basic deduction. You can claim them in addition to the standard deduction.

"I have taken off everything I can, now what do I do?" one woman asked local tax officials over the telephone.

"There was a deathly silence at our end," a tax department spokesman said.

OTHER LANGUAGES

They have their troubles too, down at the Belmont building.

Like trying to interpret a return submitted in Chinese, or German, or just about any other language known to man. They all show up, sooner or later.

Or trying to get some answers out of a sullen-faced taxpayer, while her dog chews at the assessor's ankle.

OLEBFUL

It wasn't the dog that bothered the assessor so much, it was the woman. She didn't even try to call off her animal.

She just stood and watched, with a certain amount of glee.

Truck Strike Will Continue

TORONTO (CP)—The provincial government won't interpose to force a settlement of the strike in Ontario's trucking industry. Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree has told the legislature.

"No authority exists for this government to force the parties to settle the dispute on any other terms than those agreed upon by them, freely, at the bargaining table," Mr. Rowntree said.

Napkin Theft Leads to Jail

VANCOUVER (CP)—Henry Lambert Thompson, 35, has been sent to jail for nine months for stealing table napkins worth more than $1,000 from a Canadian National Railway's boat April 12. He was arrested shortly after he tried to sell the napkins to a desk clerk in a skid road hotel.

Truscott Case

Officials Weigh Type of Review

TORONTO (CP)—Solicitor-General Pennell met here Friday with Ontario government officials on the proposed review of the Steven Truscott case and said later he will report to the federal cabinet Tuesday.

Mr. Pennell conferred with Attorney-General Arthur Wishart and Deputy Attorney-General Randall Dick on how the case should be reviewed. He said Mr. Wishart's opinion was sought because it was a matter relating to the administration of justice in Ontario.

Truscott, 21, has been serving a life term following conviction seven years ago on a charge of murdering Lynne Harper, 12.

After the meeting Mr. Wishart reiterated that he feels the case should be reviewed by the judiciary rather than by a royal commission.

Mr. Pennell stressed that no decision on the form of the review had been taken in his meetings with Mr. Wishart. The

Regional District Approved

A regional district encompassing Alberni and Port Alberni and part of the west coast of Vancouver Island was created by cabinet order Friday.

The district, named Alberni-Clayoquot, also takes in Tofino, Ucluelet, Beaver Creek improvement district and Cherry Creek water district.

Feather Fitted Out

One thousand dollars worth of cat is Rodabi's Feather, called Feather for short, a seven-month-old female, blue cream Persian kitten owned by Mrs. Barbara Navioux of Petaluma, Calif. Preparing Feather for Victoria Cat Club show this weekend is John Chapman, 248 Glenalrie, who raises Abyssinian cats. Show runs from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Sunday in Curling Club. There will be a pet parade at 3 p.m. Sunday.—(Robin Clarke)

The cabinet order said each member area would appoint a representative to hold office until Jan. 31, 1967. They will meet for the first time May 3.

Provisional directors named to represent the four electoral areas included in the new district are Frank Stewart, Edwin Webb, Paul Kimola and Ronald Hess.

A regional district designation enables members to share responsibility for whatever common services they agree upon.

They cannot, however, take on responsibilities beyond the powers of the individual member.

Students Hold Up

Exam Strain Just Normal

By BILL STAVDAL

University of Victoria students stand up well to the stress of exam time, according to the medical men who know them.

With year-end exams in full swing, there has been no unusual number of students coming to the Student Health Service with emotional problems.

The health service, a free facility for students, has a doctor on call and two consulting psychiatrists.

COUNSELLING

A Canadian national magazine reported recently that between 30,000 and 40,000 university students each year suffer from anxieties or other emotional problems serious enough to warrant psychiatric help or other counselling.

Of these, said the magazine, 6,000 are afflicted so seriously that their studies are badly disrupted, if not halted outright.

That would amount to three per cent of the 300,000 university students in Canada.

FEW CASES

But Victoria psychiatrist Dr. Blake Thomson says that no more than 50 of the University of Victoria's 3,000 students have come to the health service with emotional problems this winter.

That's only 1 1/2 per cent of the student body.

"There's hardly a mentionable number with problems caused by exams," said Dr. Thomson this week.

"There's always a number of students who experience anxiety symptoms at exam time, but that doesn't strike me as remarkable," said Dr. Thomson, who has worked with students here and elsewhere for 13 years.

The other psychiatrist, who declined to have his name used, backed Dr. Thomson's view.

The university's physician, Dr. J. E. Petersen, credits the campus small size for a healthy mental climate.

REMOVES STRAIN

"The students aren't lost," he said. "They get to know the professors and each other, and this removes a lot of strain."

Stephen Bigsby, president of the student council, concedes "there have been incidents." One co-ed tried to commit suicide last winter, he recalled.

FOUR DELEGATES

The problem of student identity and anxiety is considered serious enough to form the topic of a national seminar at the University of Western Ontario this September.

The student Alma Mater Society will send four delegates to the conference, headed by psychology student Robin Carlson.

Deadline Given Board

"A first-rate exhibition of political dancing" was how Victoria school trustee Peter Dunn described Friday's meeting of the three capital region school board trustees and Education Minister Leslie Peterson.

The meeting was called to discuss progress on the planned vocational school at Burnside and the Trans-Canada Highway.

An advisory board was appointed at the meeting to bring in recommendations for the $4,000,000 school before May 31.

Peace Bond Ordered After Neighbor Feud

It was neighbor's day in central magistrate's court Friday with two disputes ending in assault charges being laid.

An assault charge brought against George King, 737 Kanarua, by his neighbor Clifford Knight was dismissed by Magistrate William Ostler.

But Lynn and Patricia Smith were found guilty of assaulting James and Margaret Dobbs in the duplex they shared at 957 North Park April 12.

UNRULY
Magistrate Ostler told King and Knight that they had behaved like unruly and undisciplined children.

"Unless reason prevails between the two families, there will be a more serious breach," Magistrate Ostler said.

Lynn Smith was fined $50 and placed on a $250 good behavior bond for six months. His wife was placed on a $250 bond for six months.

ROCK THROWN
Clifford Knight told the court that the dispute began on March 21 when one of King's children threw a rock at his chicken.

He said he spoke to King who took a "poke" at him. Knight retaliated by throwing a piece of drain pipe.

Knight said that King then threw a wrench which struck him on the back. They tussled on a junk pile and King threw the wrench against a door as King went inside.

AXE SWUNG
Kiz said that Knight had threatened to run over one of his children and had taken a swing at him with a double-bitted axe.

James Dobbs said that Lynn Smith had called his wife a name and then kicked him in the stomach in their dispute.

Smith's wife had ripped Mrs. Dobbs' dress and grabbed her hair.

CHANGE ATTITUDE
The Smiths said that Dobbs had pushed Patricia Smith when they went to ask about their dog.

Magistrate Ostler said that he believed the Dobbs' story and told the Smiths that they should change their attitude before they got into more trouble.

The preliminary hearing of Henry Gable and William Braumberger, charged with armed robbery, will begin in magistrate's court May 24.

Court was told that by that time two other men, similarly charged are expected in Victoria from Toronto where they await trial on other charges.

Gable, Braumberger, Harold Coulter and Gordon Duck are all charged with the Feb. 18 robbery of the Bank of Montreal, Fort and Richmond, when about $18,000 was taken.

DANGEROUS DRIVING
Wayne Flegg, 3280 Cook, was jailed for three months for his part in theft of a car April 12.

Magistrate Ostler said the probation report on Flegg was an "extraordinarily unfavorable one."

His partner, Wayne Graham, 1516 Camosun, was given a suspended sentence and placed on a $500 bond for 18 months.

Graham was also fined $250 for dangerous driving and $25 for driving without a licence.

Both men were ordered to pay $200 each in compensation for damages to the car. Court had been told at an earlier hearing when both men pleaded guilty to the charges, that they hit a power pole at McKenzie and Glenford in the stolen car.

PEEPING TOM
An admitted Peeping Tom was fined $250 for loitering around Agnes and Raymond Roads April 15.

Magistrate Ostler told James

Anderson, 2945 Millgrove: "You are a long-standing and case-hardened Peeping Tom."

Anderson was also placed on a $250 good behavior bond for six months. He had pleaded guilty at an earlier hearing.

FOUR YOUTHS
Four youths pleaded guilty to being minors in possession of liquor.

Fined $35 were: Leonard Solomon, HMCS Naden; Douglas Craig, 1337 Carnegie.

Fined $40 were: Robert Moffatt, 409 Edward; John McDonald, 400 Craigflower.

Fredrick Stratheide, 930 Pemberton, was fined $40 for careless driving.

Art Display Includes Canadians

NEW YORK (CP) — Three Canadians are among 66 painters and sculptors from 20 countries represented in the Museum of Modern Art's exhibition of recent acquisitions.

They are Harold Town of Toronto, Guido Molinari of Montreal and Alex Colville of Toronto who teaches at Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B.

The formal meeting, first of its kind since the recent appointment of Mr. Nicholson as labor minister, was attended by federal deputy labor minister William Sands.

Mr. Peterson said later he made some recommendations to his colleague from Ottawa but that "I can't indicate the matters which were discussed."

Ministers, Deputies Hold Secret Talks

No formal announcement was to be released about the meeting although Mr. Peterson said the talks dealt primarily with the federal field.

"We do feel meetings of this nature are a useful way of exchanging opinions," he said.

Europe Lacks Anti-Missiles

BONN (Reuters) — European defences will not be able to meet a massive attack by medium-range missiles until 1980, Karl Gumbel, state secretary at the defence ministry, told the West German Bundestag lower house. He blamed this on exceptional difficulties in the development of anti-missiles against the medium-range rockets and said American knowledge involving anti-missile missiles could not be used as the U.S. rocket defences were built to handle high-altitude intercontinental missiles.

Castro Denies Missile Report

HAVANA (AP) — Premier Fidel Castro denies he gave an interview to a West German magazine which quoted him as saying Cuba still has Soviet missiles capable of hitting the United States. The story, published Tuesday by SPURTE II, a weekly in Bonn, quoted Castro as saying: "Today we still have Russian rockets, smaller (than the ones shipped back to Russia after the October, 1962, missile crisis), but we can still hit America's shores with them."

Money Promised Key Witness

CHESTER, England (Reuters)—The prosecution's key witness in a triple murder trial in-law and her lover are admitted Friday he expects a witness.

Witness David Smith, 17, agreed with defence counsel that he was promised money for help with articles on the case, but despite a warning from the judge he refused eight times to name the newspaper.

However, the Sunday newspaper The News of the World said it is the paper referred to in court.

Smith agreed with the defence lawyer that he was promised £1,000 ($3,000) and that he had been paid £15 ($45) a week for the last five months.

Smith said the amount of money he finally will receive from syndication earnings depends on his sister-in-law, 23-year-old secretary Myra Hindley, and her lover, Ian Brady.

David Smith

and then strangled Evans with a loop of wire.

Defence counsel questioned the unemployed youth about his interest in books on murder, sadism, sex perversion and Nazi Germany.

He agreed he and Brady exchanged books "glorifying the Nazi idea." Brady lent him Adolf Hitler's Mein Kampf and The Last Days of Goering.

FLOGGINGS

He admitted copying passages from books including what the defence called "particularly titillating" passages about girls being flogged.

"You took pleasure in writing this down?" the defence lawyer said.

"I took pleasure in trying to understand why the author had written it," Smith replied. "I was studying the matter."

The trial was adjourned until Monday.

Stabbing Suspect Arrested

SALFORD, England (Reuters)—A man has been arrested in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Rachel Heilpern, sister-in-law of a defence lawyer in the Chester Moors murder trial 35 miles from here.

The arrest followed a big manhunt in northern England for the killer of the 33-year-old dress shop manager, found stabbed in Salford Tuesday night.

Her brother-in-law, barrister Godfrey Heilpern, is the lawyer defending blonde Myra Hindley, 23, in the triple murder case.

Mrs. Rachel Heilpern was found lying among clothes racks in the backroom of her shop in this industrial town, a few hours after the first session of the Chester trial, where Hindley and her lover, Ian Brady, are charged with three macabre sex killings.

Murder squad detectives in Salford have said there is no connection between Mrs. Heilpern's killing and the Chester trial.

The man charged with her murder was not identified. He will appear in court at Salford today.

Actress Feared Beauty Fading

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Hedy Lamarr was distressed the day she was arrested for alleged shoplifting, her son said Friday, because, among other things, "she was not as beautiful as she had been."

The testimony of Tony Loder, 15, and others in the actress' municipal court petty theft trial was intended to show Miss Lamarr was emotionally upset and forgetful Jan. 27.

UPCOMING FILM

Loder said his mother's concern for her beauty was related to an upcoming film—her first starring role in a dozen years. Miss Lamarr, 51, watched her son steadily from the counsel table.

"She had been living alone,"

Loder said. "She was very thin, nervous. She looked unhealthy. Many things were upsetting her the day she was arrested. Police had accused her of driving under the influence of alcohol. The past week, she had been told to move out of the (Hidden Valley Road) house."

"She was also in the process of writing a book and she was worried that she was not as beautiful as she had been. All these things were troubling her."

Seals' Amateur Plays Like Pro

By JIM TANG

SAN FRANCISCO—Hockey can have its little ironies too. Last night at the Cow Palace, San Francisco Seals were still walking before game time, awaiting the arrival of goalkeeper Doug Favell, whose availability after Oklahoma City's Central Professional Hockey League championship win made Marcel Pelletier unavailable. Favell didn't make it by game time and the Seals were forced to use Bob Gray, the amateur they shucked after losing the first game of the Western Hockey League semi-final to Victoria Maple Leafs, 6-3.

Bucks Near End?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver Canucks moved to within one game of wrapping up their Western Hockey League semi-final series with a 5-1 victory over Portland Buckaroos here Friday night.

Playing before a sellout crowd of 5,000 fans, Canucks banged in four unanswered goals in the final two periods to take a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven series. The series moves to Portland for the sixth game Monday and a seventh, if necessary, in Portland Tuesday.

Chiff Schmeitz was the lone Portland scorer while Howie Hughes, Ray Brunel, Brian Hewitt, Larry Popin and Phil McInerney led Vancouver to the win.

ASSIST RECORD
Vancouver defenceman Larry Chan added one assist in the game to equal the WHL record of 10 assists by a defenceman held by Howie Young of Los Angeles Blades.

Young took 12 games to set the record while Chan has only taken five games to rack up 13 points and also tie the record for most points by a defenceman in WHL playoffs.

POWER PLAY
Canucks used the power play in scoring two of their goals, bringing their series total to 12 goals while Portland was a man short.

They didn't know how lucky they were. Gray came up with the finest goaltending of the series and his spectacular goalkeeping did in the Leafs, 5-4, who were no far the superior club that it seemed impossible they could lose.

The Seals were outshot 30-13 in the first two periods, yet escaped no worse than 2-2. They were outshot 18-8 in the third period yet scored three goals and the Leafs only got two. But Gray was the difference time and again as he thwarted a tremendous team effort by the Leafs who just refused to quit.

After getting off even in the first two periods, things suddenly turned for the Seals after Leafs had controlled play for the first four minutes of the third period and were threatening to finally take complete charge.

Even Gray couldn't hold out against the pressure although he made three great saves before each of the third and fourth Victoria goals. The third, by Barlow at 15:02, the fourth, by Redahl after a faceoff, caused when Gray smothered shots from Keenan Redahl, and Jankowski in succession.

It was a magnificent effort and it was a shame that it didn't count. Defeat came suddenly against the run of the play as Connolly made a fine rush, carried into the right corner and circled the goal before giving Stan Gilbertson the puck.

The rookie found the opening on the short side with only 54 seconds left and the Leafs couldn't make it back this time. Before their third - period comeback, Leafs came from behind twice after the Seals scored on long shots by John Diehl Lamoureux took a penalty for slashing George Swarbrick, and while the Leafs killed it off while not allowing a direct shot, they had trouble after Lamoureux returned. They couldn't get the puck out of their zone for the next 38 seconds and the Seals finally got the goal as Al Nicholson turned in Wayne Connolly's perfect pass.

Then came what should have been the clincher. With Ron Harris serving a penalty for charging Bob Barlow, Mike Harvey got a clean break, managed to get the puck past John Henderson as he cut in front of the goal from right to left.

It wasn't over. The Leafs just kept coming in what was probably the finest effort of the season, refusing to be discouraged by Gray, who was even better in the third period than he was in the first two.

Gravel and Jean Marc Picard, Andy Hebertson, described by King Clancy, who was at the game with Toronto coach Punch Imlach and Ray Miron, general manager of the Tulsa Oilers, as "head and shoulders the best man on the ice" got the 1-1 goal on a power play and set up Lou Jankowski with the 2-2 goal in the second period.

It was after Jankowski's goal that the Leafs came on with an outstanding penalty-killing performance that kept them even. Lamoureux drew an extremely questionable hooking penalty and referee Willie Papp then looked on a team minor for some called-for remarks from the Victoria bench.

Fred and Sandy Hucul killed off the first minute and 30 seconds then Larry Keenan finished it off with Hebertson.

Keenan, incidentally, was moved to between Jankowski and Redahl and John Sleaver worked between Lamoureux and Mike Labadie. The change gave the Leafs three effective lines for the first time in the three games here.

That they lost all of them to make it eight defeats in a row at the Cow Palace and a 2-3 deficit in the series was due particularly to Gray.

But whether Gray will be playing tonight at Memorial Arena remains open to question. "Take it from me," said Bud Poile, whose resignation as manager of the Seals was announced Thursday, "Favell will be in goal in Victoria."

The gray had to be kidding but you never know about Poile. He might have meant it.

San Francisco Silent On Poile's Successor

NEVADA CITY, Calif. (UPI)—An official announcement as to a successor to Bud Poile, general manager of the San Francisco Seals, will not be made until completion of the regular season, George Fleharty, club president, said Friday.

Fleharty, contacted at this remote California mining community, where he is campaigning for Governor Pat Brown, was commenting on speculation that Rudy Pilous, former Chicago Black Hawks coach, would succeed Poile.

"We haven't signed anyone yet," said Fleharty, "and there won't be any announcement until the playoffs are over."

Fleharty did, however, confirm negotiations with Pilous had taken place.

The Seals will play in Oakland next year in the Western Hockey League, Charlie Burns will continue as coach.

"I was speaking to Charlie today," said Fleharty, "and told him we're proud of the job he has done this year, and he is welcome to it again next year, if he wants it."

Poile Friday told United Press International he declined an offer to become vice-president at San Francisco, one of six new cities entering the National League in 1967-68.

Pilous recently accompanied the Seals on five road games, but would say nothing about the San Francisco deal. Reports are he has been offered a long-term contract with San Francisco.

Poile, 42, said his current four-year contract expires in June. "They wanted me to become vice-president. I wanted to remain as general manager because I didn't want to get that far away from the ice."

Poile said he plans to "go on and win the Lester Patrick Trophy" while finishing out his term with San Francisco.

"I'm not sure what I'll do after that. If I take another job in hockey, it will be with an NHL club. But I'm not interested in the minor leagues. I've spent my time there."

Habs Test Glare

Notes and quotes from hockey's Stanley Cup playoffs.

MONTREAL — Canadiens Friday tried out the new bright lights installed in the Forum for Sunday afternoon's opener. About 100 additional 1,000-watt lamps have been plugged in for the colored television coverage. Montreal goalie Gump Worsley, with burnt cork under his eyes, said "the lights bother you at first, just like a flashlight, but you get used to it and you certainly couldn't use the lights for an excuse if you got beat."

DETROIT—Red Wings have already played two games under the dazzling lights. Their captain, Alex Delvecchio says he feels Detroit will have to slow down Habs early in the series. "We're going to have to go for the body right off the bat," he said.

CHATTAM, Ont. — James Riddell, 37, Chatham, says he will sue Detroit defenceman Gary Bergman for injuries inflicted during a penalty-box fight in Tuesday's game. Riddell said he suffered a two-inch gash on his forehead when Bergman took a swing at him. Riddell also is considering an action against Olympia Stadium for failure "to provide protection."

MONTREAL — Canadiens have been established at 5-2 favorites to win the series. Montreal coach Toe Blake scoffed, "that's away out of line. It figures to be a long, tough series."

What About South Africa?

ROME (UPI) — South African sports executive Frank Braun Friday demanded that the International Olympic Committee "make up its mind for once and for all" on the problem of allowing South Africa to compete in the country.

Braun, president of the South African National Olympic Committee, is in Rome to face the 64th session of the IOC on South Africa's apartheid policy which prevents whites and non-whites from running trials against each other in their own country.

He said he expects to be called before the committee on April 28. The South African NOC is still a full member of the Olympic movement, but South Africa was not permitted to compete in Tokyo in 1964.

However, there is a strong move afoot here to expel the South African NOC altogether, and some members want Reg Honey expelled from the IOC because he happens to be a South African. Both moves are being sparked by colored members.

"What is the use of having an NOC if we can't compete in the Olympic Games?" Braun asked. "I want the IOC to make up its mind for once and for all whether we're in, or we're out."

He said that if the vote is for "out" then "sport as we know it in South Africa will die. Already many of our top athletes are pursuing pro-quickly because they feel there is no future in continuing in the amateur game."

Asked if there was the slightest change in the South African government's views on mixed sports and on its relations with the South African NOC, Braun replied "No, there has been no change at all in the situation."

McMahon Supports Group In Pro Soccer Team Bid

VANCOUVER (CP) — Industrialist Frank McMahon has offered his support for a bid to establish a professional soccer team in Vancouver.

McMahon met Thursday with Brig. Edward Eakins, leader of a Vancouver group seeking a franchise in the proposed 10-team North American League, scheduled to open in April, 1968.

"Mr. McMahon wanted to know what he could do to help," said Chuck Willis, a member of the Eakins group, who was present at the meeting.

"He was pleased with the progress made to date and offered us financial assistance," Brig. Eakins said.

Brig. Eakins, a member of the New Westminster police commission, said he is now captain of Vancouver will be part of the pro league.

Teams from Chicago, New York, Toronto, Detroit, Baltimore, Los Angeles and Minnesota are also expected to participate in the league.

McMahon was at one time reported linked with a second group seeking a Vancouver franchise.

Brig. Eakins said the industrialist made it clear his sole interest was to make certain Vancouver gets a team in the league.

"I don't think there's much doubt now where we stand," said Brig. Eakins. "With Mr. McMahon supporting our cause, we can't help getting this operation off the ground floor."

Banff Bid Rocked By Wildlife Body

ROME (CP) — A wildlife group based in Washington, D.C., made a determined effort Friday to wreck the Banff application for the 1972 Winter Olympic Games.

The Wildlife Management Institute said in a letter to the International Olympic Committee that facilities necessary to hold the Winter Olympics would destroy much of the natural beauty of Banff National Park.

It was not immediately established how many Canadian members the group has, if any. It had been erroneously reported earlier that the group's headquarters was in Banff.

The letter to the IOC was signed by Ira Gabrielson of Washington, president of the institute.

THEY'RE STRANGERS Ed Davis, a Calgary businessman who heads the Olympic 72 Committee, told reporters: "I've never heard of a gentleman named Gabrielson, nor am I aware of the existence of a Wilderness Management Institute."

The International Olympic Committee will announce Tuesday whether the 1972 Summer and Winter Olympic Games will be held. Montreal is among four cities seeking the Summer Games.

BID ENDORSED Davis said the conservation argument has been raised before against Banff's candidacy for the Games, but was laid to rest when the Canadian government endorsed the candidacy.

The Banff park is under Ottawa's jurisdiction.

The Canadian government, in fact, gave a re-endorsement Friday of Banff's efforts to bring the Winter Olympics to Canada for the first time.

Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Health Minister MacKenzie would leave immediately for Rome to support Banff's application before the IOC. Ambassador Gordon Crean also would do what he could to help.

SENT TELEGRAM It also was disclosed that the prime minister sent a telegram to Avery Brundage, IOC president.

And from Calgary came a telegram to Davis from the Alberta Fish and Game Association saying "congratulations on your efforts." The association had previously opposed Banff as an Olympic site and said it was to ensure minimum damage to the national park if the IOC chooses Banff.

The letter to the IOC from Gabrielson on behalf of the Wildlife Management Institute said: "I hope the IOC will refuse to be a party to this controversial decision. I hope, therefore, the IOC will decline the Banff offer and take the 1972 Winter Olympics elsewhere."

Why a Celibate Priesthood?

Church Respects Symbol of Sacrifice

It is natural that many accepted traditions are being questioned in the church during this period of renewal. In an age that often misunderstands the meaning of freedom it is to be expected that some would suggest that priests, if they so wish, be free to marry.

Those few priests who abandon the priesthood to marry attract considerable attention. Those who fall in their chosen vocation often attract more comment than do those who are happy with their calling.

ALL RESPECTED
In fact, there are both married and single priests in the Catholic church. Traditionally the Eastern Rite priests of Eastern Europe have been free to marry, although a sizeable number choose to remain single.

While the Western Church (Latin Rite) does require that priests be celibates, it admires and respects priests of the Eastern Rite and the clergy of all faiths who dedicate their lives to God's service and undertake the responsibility of marriage.

A student for the Catholic priesthood promises a life of celibacy approximately one year before he becomes a priest. Before making such a serious promise, the student would have completed seven years of seminary studies after high school graduation, and would be at least 24 years old. Both the seminary faculty and the young man's bishop have the responsibility to postpone such a step if they have doubts about the student's vocation or his freedom and knowledge concerning celibacy.

MATURITY
The student himself, because of his many years of study, is in a position to make a mature judgement. Because of these safeguards, the vast majority of priests are content with their chosen vocation.

There are many replies given to the question: "Why don't priests marry?" One explanation is that a priest, free of confident that if they are called by Christ to the life of celibacy, they will receive the grace to be faithful to that calling.

ALSO VOCATION

While it must be admitted that a small percentage of priests may regret their choice of vocation it does not follow that they could be happily married. Marriage is a vocation which also calls for generosity and sacrifice. It is not merely a remedy for those who have failed to adapt to a life which they freely chose — that of the celibate priesthood.

It is a sign of vitality to question our traditions in a time of renewal. As far as the tradition of celibacy is concerned, it should be remembered that it is not essential for the priesthood but it has proven to be very desirable. Rather than abandoning it, we should learn to appreciate its profound meaning. Celibacy enriches the lives of those who observe it and is a source of edification to others.

family responsibilities, may devote his time more readily to the needs of others and may move from place to place without disrupting the lives of others.

A priest may also be compared to the many dedicated single men and women who make a contribution to the welfare of society while having neither the intention nor the inclination to marry.

SACRIFICES
But celibacy for a priest is not fully appreciated unless it is related to Christ and to charity. Just as Christ by his life of love gave visible proof of God's love for us, so also the priest, by a life of generosity and sacrifice for the Church and the community, is a human symbol of Christ's love today.

In order to be more free to dedicate himself to the love of God and neighbor, the priest willingly sacrifices human love. If he is so motivated, his life will be a stimulus to others to practice charity and compassion.

Priests appreciate the beauty and nobility of marriage. While acknowledging this, they feel called to live a life of intimate union with Christ. They are

Christian Pavilion design for Expo 67

Exhibit to Cost $1,300,000

Churchmen Shun Expo Conference

Rev. Jean Martucci came to town this week to tell the story of the Christian Pavilion at Expo 67.

The 34-year-old priest from Montreal said 40 invitations had gone out for the press conference but the clergy present were Mr. M. T. O'Connell, representing Victoria Roman Catholic churches; Rev. Samuel Parsons, chairman of the Victoria Council of Churches, and Bishop D. A. G. Rankin of the Church of Our Lord, the reformed Episcopal Church.

PAVILION

Father Martucci, who is on leave from his posts with the University of Montreal and the diocese of Montreal, is acting as commissioner and executive secretary for the Christian Pavilion.

He explained that the pavilion is being sponsored by the Roman Catholic, United, Anglican, Presbyterian, Lutheran, Baptist and Greek Orthodox Churches, which represent 95 per cent of the Christians in Canada.

Tourist Group Elects Chief

SALMON ARM (CP)—A Clearwater motel operator, Howard McInnes, has been elected president of the Region "E" Tourist Association at its annual meeting here. Region "E" covers the area from Golden to Merritt north to Moir.

Air Canada Boosts Expo

MONTREAL (CP)—Air Canada has agreed to buy up to $1,000,000 worth of admission tickets to the 1967 Montreal world's fair. They will be available for resale to individuals, travel agents and tour operators all over the world.

Spiritual Perception Topic for Lecture

Paul A. Erickson

An explanation of how to develop spiritual perception will be presented by Christian Scientist Paul A. Erickson at a public lecture in McPherson Playhouse at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Sponsored by Victoria's First Church of Christ, Scientist, the lecture is titled "The Value of a Spiritual Outlook."

Mr. Erickson, who once served as chaplain's assistant at the U.S. Naval Academy, gave up a position as a manufacturer's agent in Chicago several years ago to become a recognized practitioner in the Christian Science healing ministry. He is now an authorized teacher of the religion and is on tour as a member of the board of lecturership at the Mother Church in Boston, Mass.

4-H Council Meets in May

Collections Banned

Reds Tighten Squeeze On Christian Churches

By CECIL NORTHCOTE
The London Observer

LONDON — Fresh restrictions on the Christian churches in the Soviet Union are being reported to the World Council of Churches, of which the Russian Orthodox Church is a member.

One restriction aims at reducing their financial resources by the prohibition of collections both inside and outside the churches. Up to now, the Russian churches have not been short of money owing to generous giving by congregations.

All money contributions to the World Council of Churches is banned but there can be gifts in kind.

Another restriction is the enforcement of the paper ration to the churches, which prevents the distribution of tracts, religious information and printed letters.

The threat to religious meetings and processions will become an enforcement if processions appear to disturb public order. The recent Easter celebrations which overflowed the main Moscow churches came near to an infringement of this order.

The biggest restriction is in the teaching of religion to minors. Two women have recently been sentenced to five years deprivation of liberty for running a Baptist Sunday school.

Prized Sculpture

Madonna and Child in stone by Yorkshire-born sculptor Henry Moore is one of artist's works on view in photographs at Art Gallery of Greater Victoria until May 1. A small but choice selection of small bronzes, as well as drawings, is also in present showing. Madonna and Child was sculpted in 1943 for the Church of St. Matthew in Northampton, England.—(Ian McKinn)

Students to Dance At Church Service

Students at the Lay Training Centre of the Christian Leadership Training School at Nanaimo, B.C., will visit Victoria from April 29 to May 3 during a two-week tour of the Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island.

The school is affiliated with the Alberta and B.C. conferences of the United Church of Canada.

One of the features of the evening service at Metropolitan Church May 1 will be a creative dance as a call to worship.

Twenty-one students from Nanaimo will conduct the whole service, using new hymns which they have written and set to 20th century music. One of the students will play the organ. A

First Time in 66 Years

Rabbis Planning Toronto Parley

The Rabbinical Assembly, international association of conservative rabbis, will hold its annual convention in Toronto next month. This is the first time in its 66-year history that the assembly has held a convention outside of the United States.

More than 500 rabbis, representing every section of Canada and the U.S., will meet May 15 to 19 at the Inn on the Park in Toronto.

A special convocation of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America will be at Congregation Beth Tzedec in Toronto, at which Prime Minister Pearson will receive an honorary degree and will present an address.

Canada's Jewish population now stands at 257,000, about the same as the present Jewish population of Chicago.

Living Costs Rise in U.S.

LONDON (AP) — Britain's cost-of-living index rose during March for the eighth successive month, reaching 114.4 compared with 114.4 the previous month. The base figure of 100 was fixed at January, 1962.

Tips You Off

"We are stopping for two weeks in France, coming from the Orient, and would like a quiet, peaceful town in the country."

"I think you'd like Aries in the wine country of the south. Van Gogh painted here. It was a Roman town. The food has a touch of the garlicky Provence. Sunny, warm and tree-shaded streets."

The Hotel Jules Caesar is modest and the best. The Roman ruins are interesting. Breakfast on the sidewalk at the Hotel du Nord in the Place du Forum once. It's a tiny shady square with much color. Aries is a comfortable train ride down from Paris.

"What do you mean when you say a remarkable town is 'Aries'?"

I mean it gets more tourists than local people. I'm not downgrading the place. Some of the best New York and San Francisco restaurants get most of their business from out of town. I label it because some people are looking for more local color.

"We understand that tipping is on the bill in Europe. But that it is custom to give a little more. So how much?"

Continental hotels and restaurants add a service charge — usually 15 per cent. But everybody expects a little more. So add 2 to 5 per cent in the small change that comes after payment: a big bill, 3 per cent; small bill, 5 per cent.

In the hotels, you have to pay it by ear. A very little each day to the room waiter who brings the breakfast. Say the local equivalent of our dime. (But if you're in a deluxe hotel, make it equal to a local quarter. Work it out from there on that basis.) Those expecting tips when you leave are: the maid and the porter. They appear automatically as you're leaving. The porter theoretically cleaned your shoes that you left each night in the hall. The concierge — (man at the key desk) — about a dollar. The porters who bring down the baggage. The doorman who puts you in the cab.

In England and Ireland, most hotels don't have the service charge. You have to work it out yourself. And in some continental sidewalk cafes, the tip is NOT included. But don't worry. The waiter will let you know — indeed he will. Tip 15 per cent. Don't tip (how few they are!) the airline personnel (except baggage porters). Bartenders in England pubs (often women) are not tipped. But you can "shoot them a beer" — buy one, that is. The elegant gent at hotel reception shows you to your room. No tip. Not EVERY time your hotel doorman opens a door. Once a day — and little — is enough.

Portofino Prosperous Gem

They Stopped Clock and Tourists Flocked

By JERRY MILES

PORTOFINO, Italy (LAT) — Somebody stopped the clock in Portofino 30 years ago. Nobody's bothered to wind it.

Little has changed in the once peaceful fishing village, save the fishermen themselves. Today in place of fish, the big catch is the tourist. As a result, natives who once passed the time mending nets are growing prosperous selling postcards.

The tourists began arriving in the 1930s. But it wasn't until 1935 the people of Portofino elected to establish their village as a national monument.

As such, not a shutter can be painted or a cablegram replaced without permission of the town council. The result of all this has caused a stampede of tourists who come to while away the hours in sidewalk cafes — or to soak in the warm sun.

Portofino looks today as it has for centuries. The facade hasn't changed. Behind it, though, small cubbyholes where fishing boats were stored have become shops stuffed with smart apparel from the fashion salons of Europe. In other caves the proprietors pour spirits for, though, is the witching hour. At precisely that moment shops melt away and Portofino becomes a thrifty tourists.

Seven o'clock in the evening, are shuttered, the great crowds come once again the unburied

Mountains rise in background of valley near Salzburg, birthplace of Mozart.

Sound of Music All Over

By GORDON IRVING

SALZBURG, Austria (CNS) — The memory of Mozart is still very much alive in this birthplace of the famed composer.

The citizens of Salzburg in the 19th century organized a music festival in honor of Mozart. It still is continued in the annual Salzburg Festival in August, when every theatre and auditorium in the city is filled with the sound of music.

The Mozarteum, or Music Academy, in Salzburg's headsome Schwazstrasse contains a collection of manuscripts that include some priceless Mozart letters. One of the highlights for tourists is the Zaubertlochenhauschen, or Summer-House, in which The Magic Flute was composed.

At Mozart's own home, his music is played every weekday in the drawing-room during the summer months.

One of the more picturesque ways to travel around the various shrines of music and architecture is by "Einspanner" or horse cab. They clog along side-by-side with modern taxis and trolleybuses.

I travelled by cable railway up to the Fortress Hohensalzburg, which is the largest completely preserved medieval fortress in central Europe. It was built first in 1071, and was enlarged and further fortified until 1683.

The cable railway climbs to the fortress every 10 minutes daily, from 7:30 a.m. until 10 p.m.

The breathtaking views of mountain country in the movie Sound of Music have brought a new popularity to the cable-car trips around Salzburg.

The Untersberg cable car climbs some 5,500 feet to the Geierck on the Untersberg, where there is a wonderful view toward the Alps.

In the summer the tourist can enjoy some memorable walks on the Untersberg plateau.

Other spectacular views of the city of Salzburg, the lakes and the mountain ranges are available from the Gaisbergspitze, 4,219 feet high, which is 10 miles by mountain railroad from the centre of Salzburg.

There are many vantage points in Austria, where the peaks of the Alps reach heights of 12,500 feet in places. At altitudes between 385 and 6,320 feet there is everything from modest holiday villages to plush international spa towns.

This part of Austria also offers many spas and health-giving springs.

The iodine-bromine — saline spring at Bad Hall, and the sulphur thermal of Bad Schallerbach, both enjoy an international reputation.

The most striking building in Salzburg is the cathedral, a model of St. Peter's in Rome. It dates back to the 17th century. The city itself was founded about the year 600. It was developed because it was the seat of an archbishop. It was originally a fortified town; the walls were not pulled down until just over a century ago.

place of timelessness and tranquility.

It's like after the audience leaves a play: the cast relaxes and Portofino becomes the old picture again. Cars are banned, except between 7 a.m. and 10 a.m. when the chain is removed and trucks move into town with supplies for the shops.

By day, great crowds fill the narrow streets and sidewalk cafes. With the dawn the umbrellas go up and the postcards come out. Along narrow alleyways shopkeepers set out boxes of raspberries and peaches and apples. The ice man, Pippo, begins his rounds while Genio the street-sweeper sweeps.

Artists set up their easels to sketch the small boats and big yachts in the bay — the ancient buildings that dip to the water and the hillside carpeted with olive trees.

Winston Churchill came often to record these scenes with brush and canvas. Now Omasia, the Greek millionaire, is a frequent visitor, as is actor Rex Harrison.

While there are pubs, there are no nightclubs and entertainment is forbidden in Portofino. Not even dancing is permitted. It is the law that preserves the town as a national monument.

The best room in the Hotel Nazionale with breakfast and dinner comes to about $10 a day. Windows open on the town square — and there is a view of the harbor and the smoky hills.

Visitors take shelter in a scattering of other hotels and pensiones. Hillside villas are up for grabs at $150 to $300 a month — I mean if you are lucky and can find a vacant one.

Portofino is reached from Genoa, an hour away, by a winding road that passes high above the sea and then slips down into tiny villages like the one next door, Santa Margherita and to San Fruttuoso.

Above town the scene of sea and yacht is surveyed by an ancient, brooding castle. In the streets below lacemakers sell their wares in sidewalk stalls and an occasional stubborn fisherman rows in from the sea calling, "pesce! pesce!" to let you know he has fish to sell.

And then the sun goes down and the tourists go home, and Portofino is old again — ancient and peaceful.

Stuart Calder, winner of Victoria medalion.

Rose bowl winner Muriel Smith, Elizabeth Winter, Don Twine, Frances Smith.

First Week Over

Smith, Calder Win Honors at Festival

By BEST BUNNY

Muriel Smith and Stuart Calder completed a week of artistic activity last night by winning the B.C. Electric rose bowl and the City of Victoria medalion respectively.

These victories brought the first week of the Greater Victoria Music Festival to an end and were preceded by the honor performance concert, all at the McPherson Playhouse before a good-sized audience.

Class rose bowl contenders selected by adjudicator Wyndham Williams were Elizabeth Winter, Frances Smith and Don Twine. Barbara Montgomery, also selected, was prevented from appearing by illness.

ALSO COMPETING

Also competing for the medalion, emblematic of top honors in the piano division, were Colin Bonneau and Angus Arrol.

Honor performances were given by Jennifer Angus, Patricia Perrins, Dena Noble, Blake Carter, Lawrence Tuttle the Groos Family, Jacqui Court, the Don Kyle Singers, Stephen Calder and no fewer than 15 awards were made.

GUEST ARTIST

The guest artist was pianist Robin Wood and the chairman H. C. O'Donnell.

The highlights concert ran smoothly and briskly, a pleasant and fitting conclusion to the first week and no adult competition of the festival.

Competition earlier Friday was sparse.

Vocally there were only four sight reading and quick study classes involving seven entrants.

PIANO SESSIONS

Two piano sessions, just about exclusively devoted to duets, trios and two-piano teams, were also heard along with a class of three who played Haydn's Concerto in C major. Elizabeth Spratt won this class and, with it, the Henry Birks and Sons prize of a watch.

In 32 duets and trios yesterday, points dropped below 80 only four times and there were three 87's and two 88's.

EXPERT ADVICE

Quite apart from all questions of marks, winnings and losses, accurately each and every competitor should have profited by the expert advice and encouragement so pleasantly accorded them by the adjudicators, Mrs. Jose Smith in speech arts, Crawford Clarke in accordeon classes, Wyndham Williams in vocalists and Neil van Allen to the pianists.

On Monday, with renewed vigor, the festival will be again off and running with the schools' section.

There will be more adjudicators and more awards.

DANCE CLASSES

Miss Rose Hill of McMaster University will be on hand to judge 24 dance classes which run morning and afternoon, Monday and Tuesday, at Central Junior Secondary school auditorium.

All this huge activity culminates with the dance honor performance at 8 p.m., Wednesday, at the same address.

The Lilian Smith Award of $25 will be on the block for the elementary school which, in the opinion of Miss Hill, "has reached a high standard of performance in one or more folk dance classes."

ELLIS BURBARY

The Edith E. Ellis burbary, also of $25, goes to a competitor, 21 years or under, in the brass or woodwind classes. Of these there are 13 and 14 woodwind and 22 brass solo entrants.

The adjudicator is Randall Spicer and the contests will be run off at St. James Douglas school on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

ENSEMBLES

School orchestras and string ensembles play before adjudicator Alfred Boyington at St. John's Memorial Hall on Monday and string soloists on Tuesday, morning and afternoon, and Wednesday in the morning only.

If, however, you fail to find the orchestras at St. John's Memorial Hall, look in First United Fellowship Hall directly across Balmoral Street.

It's on the cards that those orchestras may have outgrown Memorial Hall. If this proves to be the case they'll migrate to more spacious premises.

STRING SOLO

The Wednesday session includes class 179A, a string solo, 16 to 22 years. A win here carries with it the Congress of Strings scholarship which is valued in the neighborhood of $1,500.

Five junior school bands perform before Mr. Spicer at Central Junior Monday evening followed by one school orchestra and four senior bands on Tuesday. The opening fanfares are set for 7 p.m., not 7.30.

CHORAL CLASSES

School choral classes, all at the McPherson Playhouse, will be adjudicated by Ralph Manzo on Wednesday and Thursday mornings and afternoons, the last of these classes marking the end of competition for 1966. All that remains is the schools' honor performance: 8 p.m. at the McPherson Playhouse on Friday, April 29, and featuring recalled items and the presentation of awards.

Thursday morning and afternoon.

Piano. Class 118. Trio, under 13-1. Alison Barry and Colin Mack and Victoria Orson, Diana Griffiths and Nancy Donald, equal, 88.

Class 184. Trio, under 13-1. Brian Turkington, Joyce and Pat Seelago, 88. Class 185. Trio, under 13-1. Margaret Anne McLean, Karen Kavanagh and Janet Baker, 88.

Class 186. Duo, under 12-1. Deborah Deane and Anita Gosh and Susan Patterson and Karen Dunlop, equal, 88. 2. Lisa and Mark Stone, 87. 3. Carol-Karen Ramsey, Raylene Wendy Hill and Kathleen Lacey, Brenda Eaton and Heather Campbell and Elaine and Joan Leck, equal, 88.

Class 187. Duo, under 13-1. Elaine Williams and Carol Tola, 87. 2. Janet

Burnaby Man Freed By Appeal Court

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Court of Appeal has ordered an acquittal in the case of a man convicted in January of indecent assault on a seven-year-old girl.

The court allowed the appeal of Kerry Richard MacDonald of Burnaby, who had been sentenced to two years less a day by Magistrate Murray Hyde.

Sewage is more important than garbage disposal and should have priority in area planning according to Senior Medical Health Officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

Commenting on a report that garbage disposal is going to become an intermunicipal issue, Dr. Whitbread Friday called attention to the fact that an area sewage disposal study is due at the end of May and that there are areas where the sewage disposal situation is hazardous.

THREE DUMPS
Brentwood and the Colquhoun basin district particularly need attention, Dr. Whitbread said.

If municipalities have money to spend they should be thinking of spending it on sewers rather than garbage disposal, the doctor said. The three garbage dumps which now serve the area are being operated as well as can be expected and do not constitute half the health hazard posed by the present sewage system.

Civil engineers and draftsmen on Vancouver Island are in short supply says the National Employment Service in its April summary of employment conditions in the Pacific region of Canada.

Commission salesmen were also required for several positions on the Island but few applicants came forward.

Surveyors and instrument and compass men remain difficult to find throughout the province and are now being actively sought by the NES particularly for positions in the north of the province.

WIDE VARIETY
Approximately 1,100 persons, including 25 employers, made use of the facilities of the student placement office at the University of Victoria. Enquiries have covered a wide variety of occupations.

On Vancouver Island the construction industry has maintained a good level of employment although cement finishers and bricklayers are in short supply.

BAD WEATHER
One hundred painters were recalled to work in the Victoria area during the last weeks of March but demands for other trades have slackened.

Bad weather slowed construction in the Alberni valley for a time but now work on a high-rise apartment and a pulp mill are in full swing again. 350 men are now actively employed at Gold River.

In the Island lumber industry production was normal in most mills and multiple shifts were kept employed although a high turnover of unskilled labor was noticeable.

For Administrative Problems, Says Commissioner

Sidney's Chairman, Clerk Blamed

By TIM GLOVER
The problems in Sidney village administration over the past two years are the responsibility of the clerk and the chairman. Because of this, the deputy clerk should not have been fired village commissioner W. W. Gardner said Friday.

Sidney council, at a special meeting Wednesday night, decided that the deputy clerk, Glenn Fell, be dismissed for "economy reasons." At the same meeting the council also decided that their salaries should be increased by $500 annually for the chairman and by $300 for the commissioners. Only dissenting vote came from Mr. Gardner.

"These are the responsibility of the village clerk and the chairman, therefore, I feel the deputy clerk should not have been fired," he said.

Feelings in Sidney are running high over the council's decision to dismiss Mr. Fell.

"It's time the government stepped in and conducted a full inquiry into the affairs of the council," said one former council official.

"The pressure must be put on Dan Campbell (minister of municipal affairs) immediately. The council have shown they cannot put their own house in order so it must be done from the outside," he said.

Doog Taylor, former Sidney commissioner, said he was "amazed" at the council decision.

"During the time I was on the council, Fell worked like a trojan to take the work load off Mr. Sharp. He has done an exceptionally good job and I can't understand the council dismissing him for the vague reason they have stated. This is a false economy," he said.

Mr. Fell, 39, and the father of two children, was still reluctant Friday to make any statement. "But I'll probably have something to say after the council meeting on Monday," he said.

Mr. Fell's dismissal takes effect on May 31.

He has been employed as deputy clerk and deputy treasurer at Sidney since June last year.

Preston Given

Five Years In Jail

A 23-year-old man who, since 1961 has never been out of jail for more than six months at a time, was sentenced Friday to five years on a charge of possession of stolen goods and one year on a charge of being in possession of narcotics.

Appearing at Victoria Law Courts, Larry Alan Preston showed no sign of emotion when sentenced by Judge Montague Tyrwhitt-Drake other than to bow his head slightly. The sentences are concurrent.

FOUR DAYS

He was found guilty on the narcotics charges by a jury Thursday afternoon.

The trial took four days. Earlier he was found not guilty of a charge of breaking and entering.

POSSESSION

He was found guilty of unlawful possession of a coffee percolator, an electric knife and a TV set. He was also found guilty of being in possession of a drug called pethidine, Jan. 26.

Before sentence was passed, defence counsel Rodney Beavan argued that a probation report had been called for. The most recent report on Preston was made in 1961. He argued that the court should have the latest circumstances on Preston.

RECENT REPORT

"Without that report I too feel that I can not do my client justice," he said. "Justice would not be well served without an up to date report."

But prosecutor Rodney Taylor pointed out that since 1961 when Preston was sentenced to nine months definite and three months indefinite he had not been out of jail for more than six months at a time.

Judge Drake said he saw no point in adjourning the matter.

BOTH SERIOUS

Mr. Taylor pointed out both offences were serious. Possession of stolen goods carried a maximum penalty of 10 years and possession of narcotics a maximum penalty of seven years.

He said Preston's record didn't indicate any real attempt at rehabilitation.

'SLIGHT' CHANCES

He advised consecutive sentences. In passing sentence Judge Tyrwhitt-Drake said Preston's chances of reform were "so slight as to be negative."

Collision Injures Van Driver

A bakery delivery man remains in poor condition with head injuries after a collision Friday morning with a fire truck on his way to a reported building fire, Friday.

Robert Hodge, 235 Scott, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with a fractured skull after the collision at Douglas and Fort. Police said Mr. Hodge was flung from his van by the impact and was found behind the van semi-conscious.

Mr. Hodge was driving west on Fort and the firepumper truck north on Douglas.

The fire was found to be in a telephone booth and was quickly extinguished by another unit.

To Allow Pollution 'Incredible'—Reeve

It would be "Incredible" if and not discharged into the creek,"

The Reeve said that Central Saanich council was not planning to be heard before the board.

Mr. Lee was commenting on the application by Westcraft Manufacturing Ltd. of 2811 Douglas for a permit to discharge aluminum anodizing and conversion coating process effluent into the Sandhill Creek, Central Saanich Reeve R. Gordon Lee said Friday.

Mr. Lee was commenting on the application by Westcraft Manufacturing Ltd. of 2811 Douglas for a permit to discharge aluminum anodizing and conversion coating process effluent into the Sandhill Creek, which in turn flows into Saanich Bay.

NEAR KEATING

The point of discharge would be located at a point 70 feet from Keating Cross Road at the junction of Veyness and Keating Cross Road.

The treated effluent would be discharged at an average of 13 gallons a minute.

"The matter is now entirely in the hands of the Pollution Control Board," said Mr. Lee.

"As far as Central Saanich Council is concerned we have not been approached.

"We were given to understand that the effluent would be percolated away into the ground

Health Priorities Surprise Saanich Councillor

By JIM BRAHAN

Saanich health and welfare committee chairman COUN. Edith Gunning said Friday she was surprised at Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread's reported claim that a new sewage system is needed before worrying about garbage disposal.

"I was surprised because he informed me several weeks ago that he was going to recommend to the intermunicipal committee that a study of garbage disposal be made for the Greater Victoria area.

"I reported to my council on his suggestion," she said.

BOTH PROBLEMS

"I agree that we must have sewers as soon as possible, but I'd like to see us work on both problems.

"We don't know what can be done until we study the situation."

Metropolitan Victoria's senior medical health officer had been reported earlier as expressing alarm that the intermunicipal committee might have garbage disposal studies take precedence over the much-needed sewage system.

Dr. Gunning also said that the Saanich health department is combating the rat infestation in the Tait Street area, and will continue the fight until the rats are cleaned out.

The proposal to cover the area's open drainage ditches is being studied by the public works committee, she said.

Playgroup Gets Use of School

Saanich School Board Thursday granted the use of the old Prospect Lake School, on West Saanich Road, to Prospect Lake Playgroup. The 30 children in the group will use the school starting in September.

Festival Failure Laid to Chamber

Poor support from Victorians and the Victoria Chamber of Commerce made for a "disappointing" Spring Flower Festival, the chamber's festival committee chairman A. G. Coning reported to the chamber board of directors Friday.

Mr. Coning said that there is some doubt as to whether the festival's purpose is to awaken Victorians to the tourist season, or to attract tourists to the city. "We failed in both these objectives. We were not supported by the citizens of Victoria with any degree of enthusiasm. There were few out-of-province license plates in Victoria before Good Friday," Mr. Coning said.

NO LEADERSHIP

"Little or no support for the festival was given by the officers and directors of Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

"In fact the officers and directors did nothing to help. They were present at few if any of the functions or events."

"With such leadership how can things catch on?"

He said the reception of the festival queen at McPherson Playhouse was a "classical case of indifference, which almost amounted to rudeness."

He said no officer or director of the chamber was present at the April 3 cycle race; performance by pipes and drums of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's); the motorcycle trials; performance by Pasadena Lancers band; afternoon fashion show at the Empress; opening night of the daffodil revue; children's parade or boatmen's ball.

NO AUDIENCE

"To avoid any further humiliation, I decided against any of social opening of the Festival Art Show."

Lack of public support caused the cancellation of two dances, The Festival Ball, and the Youth Dance.

Mr. Coning said most functions could have had much more public support.

"This has been a poor Easter for attendance at functions in Victoria. Many of the almost traditional Easter functions have run a little more than half strength."

Daylight Saving

Fingers Move Clockwise Or Do They?

By JERRY BOULTBEE

The big question, come 2 a.m. Sunday, is whether to put the clocks forward or backward.

Only one of the people interviewed in downtown Victoria Friday knew the correct answer.

Mrs. Olive Holroyd, 1053 St. David, was busy painting on The Fence around the new museum site when she was approached.

"I'm just delighted with the extra hour in the summer," said she.

"But do I put it (the clock) forward or back . . .?"

She didn't know for sure, and had to work out the answer under her breath.

Julie Gray, 4085 Cedar Hill Road, was just getting out of her car when she was asked the same set of questions.

"Oh, I'm in favor of daylight saving—very," she replied brightly.

But to put her clock forward or back . . .?

"Forward—no backward—no forward, isn't it?" came her instant reply.

William E. John.

Perplexed totem

For the benefit of those who remain in doubt:

Sunday, at 2 a.m., the clocks are due to go forward one hour throughout B.C. to put us all on daylight saving time.

If you move your clock forward an hour last thing Saturday night, you're going to lose an hour of sleep when your alarm rings Sunday.

All of which is very confusing—but you'll be used to it by Monday.

Condition Unchanged

Condition of five-year-old he was showing "slight improvement."

Gary Fenwick, 5165 Cordova Bay, was termed "unchanged" by Royal Jubilee Hospital Friday. Wednesday's report said struck by a truck April 13.

Labor-Saving Devices Still Leave 1,001 Jobs

By GAY FAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — I just took a look through a report on the work load today's homemaker carries and I'm bushed.

Even in the era of numerous labor-saving devices, it turns out according to the Encyclopedia Britannica that women have 1,001 jobs around the house—care of the furnishings and clothing, maintaining the home, personal care of the family, control of the expenditures, purchasing food, supplies, and equipment, providing for the comfort of family and guests... ad infinitum.

Of the inventions exploited commercially in the current century, it's estimated that more than 30 per cent of them are time-saving devices, ranging from electric toothbrushes to automatic washing machines to self-defrosting refrigerators.

Sold last year, for instance, were countless washers, dryers, dishwashers, garbage disposal units, refrigerators, automatic coffee makers, toasters, vacuum cleaners and polishers. Yet one housewife quoted in the report said, "a week is not enough time for all the work that has to be done to care for a family... every week I have to schedule a week and a half's work..."

Where does the time saved by the time savers go? The Westclox division of General Time Corp., keying its report to the changes in this coming week-end to daylight saving time in most areas of the country, researched sociologists and other experts on time and its use for some of the answers.

Part of the "new" time goes to duties the housewife feels she must take on, now that the machines have taken over many of the old-time chores. As one housewife, writing in Reader's Digest sometime ago observed, because a woman owns an automatic washer-dryer, she finds it difficult to dredge up a justifiable excuse for sending anything to the laundry.

Today's woman, she goes on, is faced with more do-it-yourself jobs, from wall papering and painting to mowing lawns, jobs never before expected of her. Jobs once considered beyond "a woman's feeble capabilities" are now with feminine province.

Still another factor is the time-consuming job of the woman to provide "continuity in the lives of her family," as the noted anthropologist Margaret Mead, has put it. "To be there when they go to sleep and wake up."

Short Skirt Long Hair

LONDON (AP)—Pretty Patti Boyd, bride of Beatle George Harrison, returned to modelling Thursday with a skirt not much longer than her husband's hair. "It's short, about seven inches off the knee," said Patti, 21. "But I like it. It's called 'hoops'."

Her dress—"about the shortest one in the country"—is a blue brushed tricot with red and yellow insets. It's a creation from the autumn collection of three young designers who call themselves Quorum.

Patti said she probably would model hoops during next week's London Fashion Week which is expected to attract buyers from all over the world. Since she now is the wife of a millionaire, she was asked why she bothers to work. "Even the richest newly-wed," said Patti, "can do with extra money."

Century-Old Finery Graces Costume Ball

By Dorothy Wrotnowski and Eileen Learoyd

If parents or grandparents had as much fun 100 years ago as present-day Victorians had at Government House Friday night, the present generation is missing out on a merry whirl. Everyone at the Centennial Ball took great delight in re-creating the scene of a century back—and the result was a ball.

It must have looked much the same 100 years ago. It was the same moon. Horse-drawn carriages clipped up the drive to the portico of Government House. A servant in white hose and powdered wig handed the ladies out of their carriages. Little pages in white satin ran around the grand entrance hall.

Silks, satins and lace, ostrich fans, buckled shoes, velvet wigs, frills and furbelows came out of the spring night, and into the glitter of Government House for the most gala evening of the century—the 100th anniversary of the province of British Columbia.

All this was indeed most exciting and hilarious. Exciting because there was so much preparation for it, with dresses and buckles and capes and parasols coming out of attics and wardrobes out of relatives. Hilarious because everyone had so much fun looking at everyone else.

There was an old shepherd who stared in wonder at an Indian chief. The old shepherd was Commodore Angus Boulton complete with crook and sheepskin. The Indian was Rear-Admiral J. C. Hibbard dressed in the most stunning and enormous headdress.

"I am Gown-Wa-Ga-Wah," he said. "And I am wearing 100-year old buckskins given me by Pauline Johnson's father." Admiral Hibbard was made an honorary chief in 1884 at Brandon, Ont.

Then there were real Indians, dressed in the buckskins of their ancestors from all over the province—Elsie Dan Seymour from the Kamloops tribe, and Chief Richard Malloway and his wife from Chilliwack; and another magnificent man, Chief Simon Baker of Squamish who was at least 8'2" in his moccasins. But the atmosphere was really one of glitter and elegance—and to borrow a Victorian term—conviviality. Many of the gowns were of unspun beauty and color—some came to the conclusion that the party-goers of 100 years ago with their jewels and elaborately coiffured hair were far more vivid than those of today.

The entire evening was gay, happy and fun. As each party arrived there would be another burst of laughter as people recognized one another.

"Isn't it fun dressing up like this? We are the Barretts of Wimpole Street and I have brought my daughter, Elizabeth, out to the Colonies to get her away from that chap Browning." "I'm a Tudor master, I would be Henry VIII had a beard, and this is my daughter, Mary Tudor." These were just a few of the remarks overheard but they are descriptive of the mood of the guests.

A very sweet touch was added by the two small pages attired in satin breeches, and buckled shoes. They were Timothy and Anthony Pearson, grandsons of His Honor the Lieutenant Governor, aged five and six respectively. Mr. Pearson, incidentally, was attired in white breeches and buckled shoes and was obviously having a marvelous time. But the two little pages were everywhere—in the entrance hall, in the ballroom, and on the balcony for the Grand March, taking it all in as small boys do.

His Honor the Lieutenant Governor was in full regalia of the bygone era and Mrs. Pearson was in an original—a forest green velvet with white dogwood applique on the skirt godets and around the necklines. A small spray of dogwood in her hair completed the British Columbia symbol.

Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett chose a cerise gown with full hoop skirt with purple panel and frills.

One of the outstanding gowns was worn by Mrs. Ron Worley. Made for the part of Nina in the Song of Norway, it came from the MGM Studio in Hollywood. Of periwinkle blue tulle and rose pink velvet, it was correct in every detail. I didn't count them, but this gown has 125 hooks, eyes, and snaps.

Ron Worley was in a costume worn by Fred McMurray in At Gunpoint.

The Jack Todds came as a couple of their Victoria ancestors, almost unrecognizable at first glance. Lavender and lace was the choice of Mrs. P. E. Wilkinson who had her hair parted to hang in ringlets on either side.

Victoria's well-known historian, James K. Nesbitt, was thoroughly enjoying the part of a gentleman of olden days.

The William Ostlers also looked the part, she in garnet velvet with ruffled lace yoke and high frill around the throat. Her amethyst and pearl brooch furthered the old fashioned look. Among the more unusual costumes were two weevils. These weevils were said to have been preserved from the biscuits that provisioned Captain Vancouver's voyage of 1778. Inside the weevils (tied up from head to foot) were Dr. Peter Banks, head of the H. C. Medical Society in private life, and his attractive wife, Mary.

Certainly the prettiest hat must have been worn by Mrs. Nicholas Vandervliet. A properly Ascot hat, it was a bouquet of pascley and tulle and framed her pretty face by at least two feet.

Absolutely authentic costumes were worn by Mrs. Alex Gillespie, and her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Anderson. Mrs. Gillespie wore "Aunt Sarah's summer dress" with a beautiful shawl and Mrs. Gillespie wore a dress for gardening which had been in the family for a century.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Elworthy, the former with lace shirt front and at the wrists, and she in pale orchid brocade with hoop skirt, came with son, Gordon, and his wife. Gordon also sported lace and Angle was in blue shot tulle.

Mrs. Ger Dickson's gown was of pale grey bronze brocade splashed with bright orange and copper tones. Mrs. A. C. Wurtele was in black lace with black lace bonnet.

Mayor Lionel Mercer of Vernon came as Louis XIV, splendid in blue brocade and white wig. His wife was also in blue and white brocade and a white wig.

John Wallace's buckskin outfit and fur cap put him in as a courier-de-bois, and his wife, Doreen, was demure in sprigged muslin and pink tulle.

Commandant of Royal Roads, Group Captain D. B. Wurtele, came in the garb of a jester, complete with bells. His wife was charming in a frock of polka dots in white and black, with poke bonnet. Mr. and Mrs. T. O'D. Walton were there, she in a hoop skirt with lace shawl, and he carrying a 100-year-old pipe.

Wonderfully handsome was Capt. W. B. Holms, attired in naval uniform of the Nelsonic period, appropriate for court dress.

Ex-mayor Percy Scurrah created quite a sensation in his stove-pipe suit, beard and bald pate (taped, not glued on we hope!) as Victoria's first mayor, Mayor Harris. Mrs. Scurrah was charming in black lace, a gown once owned by the M. R. Smiths of the old biscuit company located on Dallas Road. In tulle, beads and sequins, it had a matching, fringed cloak.

Eric Charman wearing a brown and bronze gentleman's suit and Shirley Charman was a dancing girl of gay early days in a green and gold brocade with plumed headdress.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I work in a four-girl office handling the switchboard and doing some typing.

A few weeks ago I began to knit a sweater for my boy friend. My boss walked by and asked what I was doing. I told him I was knitting a golf sweater. He said in a half-kidding way, "Since you're doing it on my time, I want it."

I thought nothing of his remark until a couple of days ago when the boss came by again and asked me how "his" sweater was coming. He held it up and allowed as how it was going to be a perfect fit — and that the colors pleased him, too.

I'd like to give this sweater to the boss because he has been very good to me, but my boy friend is violently opposed to the idea. I don't know what to do, Ann. I think the boss is expecting the sweater, but I don't want to have any trouble with my boy friend. Please advise. — KNIT WIT.

Dear Wit: Give this sweater to your boy friend and get busy on a second one — for the boss. And since he made a crack about knitting on his time I suggest you do all future knitting at home. Many a truth is spoken in jest.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 17-year-old son has always been a good student and an outstanding athlete. I can't be objective about this boy because I am his mother, so I'm asking for your opinion.

A girl (I'll call her Debbie) telephoned our son at least once a night. I was hoping she'd see your column several weeks ago about girls who telephone boys. If she saw it, it didn't help.

Two weeks ago this girl got a new car for her 16th birthday. She comes by every morning to drive our son to school. She always manages to ring the door bell when we are at the breakfast table. Naturally I feel compelled to invite her to join us.

I'm a slow mover in the morning and it's all I can do to attend to the demands of my family at that hour. Company at 8 a.m. I don't need.

Should I keep quiet and hope this romance dies of natural causes or should I drop a hint and hope she takes it? — BURNED TOAST.

Dear Burned: A hint would not face this girl. Tell your son to ask Debbie to please wait in the car. A 16-year-old girl who doesn't know any better than to ring a boy's doorbell at 8 a.m. needs to be educated.

Dear Ann: When I was attending church last Sunday the man seated behind me snapped two coins together during the entire sermon. This really upset me but I kept quiet.

Last night I attended a musical. A fellow who sat next to me clipped his nails throughout the evening. The snapping sound almost drove me nuts.

Do I have a case of jumpy nerves, as a friend of mine suggested, or were these two people out of line? — BOWLING GREEN.

Dear B.G. Both men were unspeakably rude. Why didn't you express your annoyance. Too many people behave like doormats and then wonder why they get stepped on.

Bride Makes Own Gown

Pearl Meleta Taylor became the bride of Mr. Frederick Gilbert Curlew at a double-ring ceremony in Centennial United Church. Rev. S. J. Parsons heard the marriage vows for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Taylor, 2854 Rose Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. George swept to the floor from a French lace cummerbund. She wore a floor-length veil of white tulle and lace and for "something old" a gold locket belonging to her grandmother. Pink and white carnations were in her cascade bouquet.

Curlew, Stephenville Crossing, Nfld. Given in marriage by her father the dark-haired bride wore a floor-length, bell skirted gown of white peau de sole which she made herself. Organza flowers outlined the round neckline and a train

Mrs. M. Cox, matron of honor, was in a rose peau de sole gown styled after the bride's. She wore a floral whimsy headpiece on tone and carried pink and white carnations. Flower girl, Pamela Cox, wore a floor-length frock of white eyelet with rose ascot, and carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations. Gold lockets, gifts of the bride, complemented the attendants' ensembles.

Mr. Tony Cox was best man. Ushering were Bruce and Kenneth Charters, the bride's cousins. A three-tiered cake, made by the bride's mother and decorated by Mrs. L. Lewis, centered the head table at the reception in Holyrood House.

For a honeymoon trip to the mainland the bride wore a rose boucle dress topped with a winter white coat.

Mrs. Landel Honored

At the meeting of the Oak Bay United Church Women which was held in the church parlor Mrs. P. A. Gibbs presided.

Mrs. F. F. Dawson, past president, before making a presentation to Mrs. A. G. Landel, gave interesting facts about the work Mrs. Landel had done in the church in 18 years. Mrs. Landel is leaving Victoria with her family to live in Vancouver. She was presented with a life membership and pin.

Mrs. C. E. Lockhart presented a panel of the Symbols of the United Church Crest. The three other members taking part were Mrs. J. R. Irvine, Mrs. G. M. Horwood and Mrs. A. Hall.

B.C. Copper Plant Promised Subsidy

The B.C. government is willing to pay a subsidy which would amount to $2,500,000 in 10 years to any company which decides to build a copper processing plant in the province, Mines Minister Brothers said Friday.

"Although I can't say any plans are on the drawing boards, we have had some extremely warm inquiries," he said.

It would take several years to build a smelter, he added, and "I am hopeful there may be some decisions made this year."

EXPORT OPPOSED

The mines minister will visit Gaspe, Que., next week to visit a look at Noranda's new copper smelter.

The provincial government, he said Friday, is opposed to the continued export of copper concentrates to other nations for processing.

"We want to use our resources. It is our policy to try to get some primary reduction of our ores in B.C. and to proceed to refining copper as soon as possible."

DEPUTY GOING

Mr. Brothers will attend the annual convention of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy in Quebec City, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Brothers

He will be accompanied by deputy mines minister Patrick Mulcahy, chief inspector of mines, J. M. Peak, and Dr. M. S. Hedley, deputy chief of the mineralogical branch.

The minister, deputy minister and chief inspector will then spend a day at Noranda's smelter.

"We want to check all phases of it's operation including air and water pollution control," Mr. Brothers said.

Last week, the minister and several top mines officials visited a copper smelter and refinery at Tacoma, Wash., operated by the American Smelting and Refining Company.

Historians To Meet On Galiano

GALIANO ISLAND — Local branch members are busy preparing to play hosts to more than 200 members of the B.C. Historical Association at the group's mid-May conference here.

Recently Mrs. Margaret Robson led a charge on the community hall, her troops waving paint brushes, shovels and electrical equipment.

It is the first time Gulf Islands Branch has been host to the association. Many will be seeing the island for the first time.

APPLICATIONS

Mrs. Donald New, head of billing, has had applications coming from all over the province. Mrs. Ed Ketoham, head of membership, has 50 members on Galiano alone. They have joined to take part in the big event May 13 to 15.

Identification cards will be in the form of seagulls. Pioneer badges will be handed out to Gulf Island residents of 40 years standing.

Insurance Briefs Coming In

A number of briefs have already been filed with the royal commission on automobile insurance. Its chairman, Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton, said here Friday.

He said the first hearing, which opens in Victoria on May 5, will last more than one day.

The three-man commission was established in January to investigate the field of automobile insurance rates.

Its other members are Dr. Peter Lussig of the University of B.C. and Charles Walls of Victoria, manager of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture.

He said with the constantly increasing membership he was sure the function of the association would be expanded to include a concern for development of government policy relative to traffic and the motorist.

IDEAL TIME
He said the opening of the new building came at an ideal time coinciding with the opening of the northern extension of the Island Highway to Prince Rupert through the B.C. government's addition to the ferry

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes wields sharp scissors

Expanding Concern

BCAA Role Will Change Predicts Mayor Toone

With a record of more than 2,000 motorists served since its unofficial opening the new office of the British Columbia Automobile Association officially opened Friday with the cutting of a ribbon by Lieutenant Governor Pearkes.

A crowd of 150 people filed through the building after the ceremony to catch a closer look at the $150,000 structure.

Mr. Pearkes told the crowd there was strong evidence that the building at Pandora and Cook Street was a good one. This was provided by the fact that the architects had moved in with the BCAA. The firm of Wade, Stockhill, Armour and Partners occupies the top floor.

NEXT DECADE

Victoria Mayor A. W. Toone predicted the role of the BCAA would change significantly during the next decade and added because of growing traffic congestion in the country he did not know whether the automobile was a "blessing or an abomination."

He said with the constantly increasing membership he was sure the function of the association would be expanded to include a concern for development of government policy relative to traffic and the motorist.

IDEAL TIME
He said the opening of the new building came at an ideal time coinciding with the opening of the northern extension of the Island Highway to Prince Rupert through the B.C. government's addition to the ferry fleet. He was referring to the Queen of Prince Rupert which will run between Kelsey Bay and Prince Rupert.

He said the association would be a great help to the increasing demand of people from the moderate and the United States who use Victoria as the point of embarkation on the grand circle tour of Vancouver Island and B.C.

Especially, Children

More Exercise Needed, Says Peterson

Education Minister Leslie Peterson said Friday that British Columbians need more physical exercise.

He was commenting on a Simon Fraser University research team report which concluded that nine out of 10 elementary school children are not in good physical condition.

Mr. Peterson reported that if this is the case, parents are partly to blame for not seeing that their children get enough exercise.

Many parents today drive their children to school when walking is one of the best exercises which can be recommended for keeping in shape, he said.

Dr. Glenn Kirchner, chairman of SFU's physical development team, headed the research team. He reported that "in B.C. at the elementary level where it is vitally needed, there appears to be no deep concern over physical education programs."

Mr. Peterson said: "There's no question that physical education is important in our public school system and increased emphasis has been placed on this aspect of education."

"I would hope this trend will continue," he said. "The ideal situation is to have a good mind housed in a strong and healthy body."

"However, I think it would be most unfair to place the total responsibility or blame for absence of physical fitness on the school system."

Mr. Peterson said that in this modern world people just don't get enough exercise.

"I would hope that society as a whole, including the public school system, will place greater stress on the importance of physical fitness."

Strachan Displays Hits Fitness

New Democratic Leader Robert Strachan says he's in such good shape he can do "10 or 15 pushups without any trouble."

When the slim Opposition Leader bounced into the legislative buildings Friday, his opening remark was, "I didn't have to lose 20 pounds because I'm not fat physically or mentally."

He gave no explanation but Mr. Strachan apparently was referring to Premier Bennett's comment during a press conference Monday that he has lost 20 pounds and is getting into shape for the next election.

15 PUSH-UPS
The premier told reporters at that conference that his family had criticized him last Christmas because he was eating too much.

Mr. Strachan, to back up his boast, later dropped into the press gallery, removed his glasses and did 15 consecutive push-ups from the floor.

Says NDP Leader

'Typhoid Mary Carrying Electionitis'

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said Friday he will make two political tours in the province and then spend a month visiting relatives and friends in his hometown of Glasgow, Scotland.

The Provincial New Democratic Party leader leaves Monday morning for a round of political speeches in Salmon Arm, Vernon, Revelstoke, Golden, Grand Forks and Penticton.

He will return to his home at Cedar, south of Nanaimo, at the end of the 10-day trip. He will then swing up to Prince George and down through the Cariboo, including Quesnel and Williams Lake.

IF AND WHEN

Is the NDP leader expecting a provincial election?

"I'll handle that problem if it comes up but I haven't got electionitis," he said.

"Mr. Bennett is the Typhoid Mary of electionitis—he's the carrier."

Strachan

Will Mr. Strachan be campaigning during his tour?

"I'm just spreading truth and light. It's part of my job, I do this every year," he said.

Mr. Strachan and his wife will visit Scotland from May 22 to June 18. It will be Mr. Strachan's first visit home since he left there 25 years ago.

And on one election is called in the meantime: "Well, you make your place and if something happens you change your place."

Thieves Take Art Treasures

PARIS (Reuters) — Thieves stole more than 30 valuable paintings from the Millet Museum at Barbizon, in the forest of Fontainebleau. They were all by the 19th-century French landscape painter Francois Millet, after whom the museum is named. The thieves, who broke in during the night, also took important sculptures and bronzes. The full extent of the losses was not known.

Printers Seek Strike Vote

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Members of the Kamloops local of the International Typographical Union have applied for a government-supervised strike vote, the latest move in a contract dispute with the Kamloops Sentinel, this city's daily newspaper.

The 25-member local has received a pledge of support from the Kamloops and District Labor Council after Romalene Newmann, ITU delegate, informed members of the strike vote application.

universities in British Columbia. His refusal was in reply to criticism by Dr. W. W. Stewart, president of the University of B.C. Faculty Association, that on a per student basis, UBC's $20,300,000 in federal-provincial grants will be less than the University of Victoria's share of $3,180,500 and Simon Fraser University's share of $3,199,383.

OWN FORMULA

Mr. Peterson pointed out that the formula was struck by an advisory board representing all three universities and that "they deliberated over a lengthy period of time in reaching a decision of just what would be equitable."

"I would have difficulty in coming to a conclusion that the representatives of the three universities' financial advisory board were wrong."

City Coin Collector Wins Major Awards

Avid coin collector, Mrs. Gladys Brown, member of Victoria Numismatic Society, won two major awards at the Vancouver Numismatic Society-sponsored 11th annual coin carnival in Vancouver, last weekend.

Mrs. Brown won the event's grand award, and first place in the Canadian coin display division.

ONE CENT

Thinking it might be valuable, she made contact with the Victoria Numismatic Society and attended a meeting at the art gallery.

The Victoria group appraised the coin, and found it was worth one cent.

But the meeting aroused an interest in coins and Mrs. Brown soon joined the society and began collecting in earnest.

In 1959, she was elected society secretary, and she held the post until 1965.

BANK VAULT

Meanwhile her collection has grown, but she still keeps the original penny she found in the sewing machine.

It's locked up, along with the rest of her coins, in a bank vault.

Mrs. Brown specializes in Canadian coins.

"It's a very expensive hobby," she said.

REAL FINDS

For instance, she would like to add to her collection, a 50-cent piece of 1921, worth $4,000, a 1921 penny worth $800, and a 1948 silver dollar, worth $300.

"They would be real finds. They are a collector's dream."

She hopes to do a little travelling, searching for coins, and also to attend the Canadian Numismatic Convention in Winnipeg in August.

Mental Centre May Be Hit Soaring Costs Stall Museum

'Remedial Action' Awaited

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Cost of the provincial museum complex has soared so far out of line that further construction has been delayed until remedial action can be taken.

Premier Bennett warned Friday that unless some way is found to curb spiralling costs, work on the project might have to be spaced out over a longer period of time.

Latest cost figures show that the museum and archives buildings, originally estimated to cost $6,500,000, might run as high as $8,000,000—$1,500,000 more than anticipated.

QUESTION OF RESTRAINT

"This is not a question of money, but one of restraint," said the premier.

He said the government is willing to delay any project but the Peace and Columbia River power developments in order to halt spiralling construction costs in British Columbia.

A cutback in government construction projects could probably affect the future of a new mental hospital in Victoria as well as the government courthouses which have already been started in Duncan.

"If construction costs go too high, the industry has only itself to blame," Mr. Bennett said. "We asked industry and labor to exercise restraint—it is now not for government only to talk but to act."

SPACED OUT

The premier said the treasury board will probably be asked next week to make more money available for the museum.

But he warned that if revised cost estimates for the main museum construction contract are too high the work would be "spaced out."

This would mean that British Columbia's contribution to the

Troop-Laden Plane Crashes Into Slope

GENE AUTRY, Okla. (UPI)—A chartered four-engine Electra prop-jet plane carrying 32 soldiers and eight crewmen on a flight from Fort Nord, Calif. to Fort Benning, Ga., crashed and burned Friday night during a driving rain in the Oklahoma community of Gene Autry on the air route between Oklahoma City and Dallas, Texas.

First reports indicated most of those aboard had been killed. But there were some survivors.

The plane smashed into the south slope of Arbuckle Mountain, very rugged terrain with an elevation of about 300 feet. Wreckage of the plane was strewn about the mountain. The small number of survivors were badly injured, some with burns.

VERY FEW SURVIVORS

A spokesman of the Oklahoma Highway Patrol said, "From all indications, there will be very few survivors."

Rescue equipment from as far away as Texas was rushed to the scene. A unit of the Oklahoma National Guard in Ardmore was called out. U.S. Route 77 in the crash vicinity was jammed up for several miles.

A dispatcher at the sheriff's office in Ardmore said he had talked to a deputy at the crash scene and been told there were between five and 10 survivors.

"Get all the ambulances and station wagons and anything that can haul a body," the deputy said.

SAW A FLASH

The ill-fated plane was approaching the Ardmore airport to refuel when the crash occurred.

Federal Aviation reported they had seen a flash north-east of the airport about the time of the crash, roughly 6:30 p.m. P.S.T.

East-West Police In Gunfight

From Reuters-AP

BERLIN (CP)—East and West German border guards fought a gun battle across the Berlin Wall Friday night as two Communist guards dashed over to the West.

As the two guards crawled through barbed-wire fences toward the wall, the East German police fired at them.

A nearby West Berlin policeman shot back. The two reached West Berlin safely.

Smithers Again

SMITHERS (CP)—The village of Smithers' water supply has again been threatened by fire. Chillingwater equipment at the temporary water pumping station, set up after the permanent pumping station was destroyed by fire during the Easter weekend, was put out of commission by another blaze Friday.

Flying saucer fans, with tales of visitors from outer space, called James Nelson, whose home is next to the lake.

A search was planned. Men and women armed with flashlights crept through the woods Thursday night.

They covered at a tree and shone their flashlights—right into the big saucer eyes of a noisy baby owl. It went beep, beep.

HOUSTON (UPI)—A promising new kind of artificial heart Friday took over even more of the workload of the faltering heart of an Illinois coal miner. But the patient's wife was told her husband might be unconscious as long as a week.

Marcel L. De Rudder, 65, of Westville, Ill., was still unconscious more than 24 hours, after the artificial heart was attached to him. Famous heart surgeon Dr. Michael E. DeBakey said the man may have suffered "temporary brain damage."

DeBakey told Mrs. Edna Rudder her husband might not regain consciousness for a week.

SAW DOCTOR

A bulletin said Mrs. De Rudder conferred with Dr. DeBakey and saw her husband, although he was unconscious.

"The patient's condition remains unchanged," the bulletin said.

Dr. W. W. Akers, member of a Rice University group that developed the artificial heart, finally left the hospital after 48 hours at De Rudder's bedside.

He said he had encountered no problems with the artificial heart.

"It's doing remarkably well," he said.

It was thought that the temporary brain damage DeBakey

SEATTLE (AP)—Beep-beep, it went. For many nights from a dark wooded area next to Lake McDonald, southeast of Seattle.

Neighbors wondered. Reports were made to police of red fireballs swooshing through the sky and silvery domed things clanking and grinding in the woods.

Influence Peddling

Dupuis

DUPUIS CONVICTED

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Yvon Dupuis, former federal minister without portfolio, was convicted Friday of influence-peddling and ordered to pay a $5,000 fine or go to jail for a year.

Mr. Justice Evender Veilleux gave the former Liberal cabinet minister 30 days in which to pay the fine.

A court of Queen's Bench jury delivered the verdict after deliberating an hour.

There was no immediate word from Paul Martineau, former Conservative mines minister who defended Dupuis, whether an appeal would be made.

Dupuis was charged with having accepted a bribe of $10,000 in 1961 in return for his influence in obtaining a provincial racetrack permit for Roch Deslauriers, a St. Johns, Que., chiropractor. The permit was never granted.

Dupuis resigned in January, 1965 following allegations of influence-peddling against him.

150 DOCUMENTS

In his closing argument, Crown Prosecutor Jean Blenvenue reviewed points of his case against Dupuis.

He said he had not only established the version of the events given by Mr. Deslauriers but also the depositions of some 45 other witnesses and the veracity of 150 documents and other evidence.

DESCRIBED AS 'FANTASY'

The evidence of Dupuis, who was principal witness for the defence, was in contradiction with other testimony and assumed to be fantasy, he said.

Mr. Blenvenue said the idea of the crime took birth in the mind of Dupuis and led to his sudden change of fortune.

CONCORDANCE

There was, he said, a concordance between bank notes deposited May 8 and 9, 1961, to the account of the Science Univers Co., of which Dupuis was president, and the bills which made up the $10,000 which Mr. Deslauriers had obtained May 8 and 9, saying they were to give to Dupuis in order to obtain a racetrack permit.

INTERMEDIARY

The Crown prosecutor recalled the evidence of Eric Kierans, Quebec minister of health, and Guy Favreau, president of the Privy Council, and other witnesses who testified Dupuis had admitted to them he had received the $10,000, though only as an intermediary between Mr. Deslauriers and the then Quebec revenue minister, the late Paul Earl.

Mr. Blenvenue said the jury should declare Dupuis guilty of the crime of influence-peddling if its members were convinced he committed the crime.

Dressed in civilian clothes, wearing sunglasses and appearing nervous, the Mountie was escorted into the magistrate's office in the town hall by Staff Sgt. J. G. Skinner of Truro, who laid the charge, and Sgt. D. S. Moody, head of the New Glasgow detachment.

NO SPECTATORS

Sutherland was not handcuffed. The two men flanking him were stern and snapped photographs that they wanted no pictures taken. There were no spectators watching the scene outside the town hall.

Sutherland was silent as the magistrate read the charge and remanded him. There were only seven spectators inside the office.

"As soon as the Mountie took him in the office they slammed the door," said a reporter. "It seemed only a few seconds that they were in there, then they came out again."

LONE BANDIT

During the robbery a lone bandit wearing a stocking over his face held up a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia and held five employees at gunpoint while a teller scooped $8,900 from a cash drawer into a satchel.

RCMP said Friday the bulk of the stolen money had been recovered in the New Glasgow area.

Sutherland, a native of Plaster Rock, N.B., and married, was stationed in Halifax for the last five years and prior to that was with detachments in Steviack and New Glasgow.

Theberge and Anderson pleaded not guilty. Decision is to be handed down April 29.

Mountie Charged In Holdup

STELLARTON, N.S. (CP)—An RCMP corporal, with the force for 13 years, was charged here Friday with the $8,900 armed robbery of a bank in nearby Trenton Monday.

Cpl. Harry Sutherland, 32, a member of the Nova Scotia II division headquarters administrative staff in Halifax, was arraigned briefly before Magistrate W. A. Richardson, then remanded in custody to the county jail in Pictou. He will appear Monday in magistrate's court in New Glasgow.

Dressed in civilian clothes, wearing sunglasses and appearing nervous, the Mountie was escorted into the magistrate's office in the town hall by Staff Sgt. J. G. Skinner of Truro, who laid the charge, and Sgt. D. S. Moody, head of the New Glasgow detachment.

Court Holds the Last Ace

Four of Clubs Won But Yee Ning Was Wild

ASHCROFT, B.C. (UPI)—Two men have been charged with cheating in a $9,000 poker game, under a rarely used section of the criminal code.

A businessman told the court he lost a poker hand because the dealer gave another player a card from the bottom of the deck.

Yee Ning said he had bet $1,200 on the turn of the last card in the game of five-card stud poker and his bet had been called by Bernard Theberge, 42.

Yee claimed the dealer, James Anderson, 33, then dealt Theberge the four of clubs which was sufficient to give Theberge a winning hand but Yee said the four of clubs had been on the bottom of the deck after the cards were cut before the hand started.

Court was told Yee and four other businessmen lost a total of $9,000 in the game, played in a motel room last December.

Evidence was also given that a total of 24 decks of cards were found in the accused men's car and in the motel room, all of which were marked.

Theberge and Anderson pleaded not guilty. Decision is to be handed down April 29.

Bully-Boy Salesmen Beware

PORT ALBERNI—It will be a brave fly-by-night salesman who raps on doors in the Alberni Valley for the next few days. The Chamber of Commerce had as its guest speaker Tuesday

Ross W. Douglas of the Victoria Better Business Bureau. Mr. Douglas showed a film explaining how a Better Business Bureau can protect a community from those who make a practice of fleeing the unsuspecting. Thursday, Mayor Bishop of Alberni asked residents to advise the mayors of either of the Twin Cities, or members of the council, or any suspect or unsatisfactory sales representatives who might be operating in the area. Complaints from residents recently prompted the appeal. A group of magazine salesmen came in for particularly rough criticism as residents claimed the young men represented themselves as students at the local high school.

They then asked residents to sign their names to the salesmen could gain extra "points" toward a "scholarship."

The signatures were later revealed to have been signed on contracts to purchase magazines.

GIMMICKS
Another gimmick had one salesman stating the magazines would cost only $1.50 per month. Then a second salesman would suggest that by paying $5 monthly, the cost would be the same.

Surviving are five sons and three daughters, including Mrs. Eugene LaRose, Harvey Cyr, and Mrs. William Krawetz, in Port Alberni.

Mrs. Cyr also left 50 grandchildren and 81 great-grandchildren.

Picture-Packed Weekly Makes Duncan Debut

DUNCAN — The Cowichan Pictorial, the "first Canadian all-pictorial weekly community newspaper," was born at Duncan earlier this week and 8,383 homes in the Cowichan Valley and Chemainus areas received first copies of the attractive publication.

Former Fleet Street journalist Andy Biggs is "extremely happy with the response from businessmen and the general public."

Mr. Biggs, a former editor of the West Coast Advocate and now production manager of the Twin Cities Times, both published in the Alberni Valley, is editor and publisher of the new newspaper here.

He spearheaded earlier this year a major protest against the conditions created in the Alberni by industrial fall-out from local mills.

Mr. Biggs said: "I have lived in the Cowichan area for over 12 years, from the late 1940s until 1960, and it is with the greatest happiness that I now return."

Regional District Approved

A regional district encompassing Alberni and Port Alberni and part of the west coast of Vancouver Island was created by cabinet order Friday. The district, named Alberni-Clayoquot, also takes in Tofino, Ucluelet, Beaver Creek improvement district and Cherry Creek water district. The cabinet order said each member area would appoint a representative to hold office until Jan. 31, 1967. They will meet for the first time May 3.

Provisional directors named to represent the four electoral areas included in the new district are Frank Steuart, Edwin Webb, Paul Kimola and Ronald Hess.

A regional district designation enables members to share responsibility for whatever common services they agree upon.

They cannot, however, take on responsibilities beyond the powers of the individual member.

Student leaders from every senior high school on Vancouver Island are being invited to a day-long seminar May 7 at the University of Victoria.

The conference is intended to establish liaison between the university and high schools and smooth the transition, university student council

Grade 12 delegates will spend the day hearing about next fall's Fresh Week.

Grade 11 students — next year's high school graduating class — will form a liaison core with university, Mr. Biggsby said.

DUNCAN — City Council at a special meeting Friday approved a 1966 budget of $773,290 and fixed the mill rate at 53, up two from last year.

A city official said: "The budget increased over the 1965 budget by $71,115 of which $21,476 is from the machinery and equipment reserve for purchase of a new fire truck.

"The balance is derived from the increase in the value of land and improvement assessments and other current revenues."

TWO MILLS

This year's 53 mills include:

General rate, 20.9; debt rate, 4.36; and education, 27.74.

Last year's budget was $702,174, and mill rates then were:

General rate, 20.7; debt rate, 4.57; school rate, 25.73.

This year's two-mill increase is caused by educational costs. In 1965 the City of Duncan contributed $183,999 towards the Cowichan school district's total expenditure and this year it will be $212,569.

BREAKDOWN

The 1966 City budget includes: Social welfare, $87,000; general government, $63,450; protection to persons and property, $82,350; public works, $57,340; sanitation and waste removal, $48,800; recreation and community services, $46,312.

The appropriation for reserves this year is estimated at $117,500. The 1966 budget for the city's water system totals, $122,700, and the two largest amounts: $29,620, repayment of bank loans and distribution system maintenance, $24,000.

Ferry Workers 'Forced' To Sub-Committee

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

A member of a ferry workers' committee said Friday afternoon they will reluctantly accept the government's offer of a cabinet sub-committee hearing about ferry schedule grievances.

The committee spokesman, who asked that his name not be used at this time, said "we are forced into the position of accepting this hearing even though there is no guarantee that action will be taken."

Earlier in the day, the ferry workers' representative, Victoria lawyer Marney Stevenson, was asked by a cabinet sub-committee to present her case for the workers within 14 days.

Mrs. Stevenson said she was advised that permission would not be granted for appointment of a board of reference to hear complaints against a summer shift schedule of 12 days on, three days off.

The dispute has dragged on since the beginning of the new year.

The Civil Service Commission ruled on Jan. 28 that the ferry workers should abide by this year's work schedule and that the B.C. Ferry Authority should present new schedules next year.

Good Sun-Tan Weather Forecast

PORT ALBERNI—Those who long to spend sun-soaked hours on the beach this summer, and dream of blue skies and dappled shade, can take heart from observations by weatherman Colin Wilson.

Looking over weather charts gathered over the years, Mr. Wilson has observed that years when April had less than two inches of precipitation were often followed by hot, dry summers. So far less than an inch and a half has come down this April — 1.26 inches to April 19.

NANAIMO — A camp for the treatment of emotional disorders among children will be in operation at Shawanigan Lake the last two weeks in August.

It is the first time this has been tried in B.C., but its organizer, Dr. Sven Jensen, has carried out a similar experiment before in Ontario.

HELPFUL

One way of measuring success, he said, is to see how the children make out in school before and after their stay at the camp.

"I've had cases where children were able to go into normal classes afterwards, and I even had one child who was too sick to go to school, but was able to after a stay at a camp like this."

MONEY NEEDED

Chairman of the fund-raising committee is Dr. Mladen Zorkin, and he is hoping to raise $3,500 for the camp at Cliffside Preparatory School.

Twenty children are expected to make the two-week stay. Treatment is expensive because of the large number of highly trained personnel needed to staff the camp, 14 in all.

WELFARE CASES

"Those parents who can pay all or part will do so, but some parents are on social welfare," Dr. Jensen said.

Estimated cost per child is $170.

Children will be selected from the areas north of the Malahat which supply the money.

FOUR SPONSORED

The more money a community contributes, the more children from that area will be at the camp.

Already the Alberni Valley branch of the Mental Health Association has agreed to sponsor four children from its area. Children attending the camp will be in the six to 13 age group, and selected from those referred to the mental health clinic.

NOT GOVERNMENT

Dr. Jensen emphasized: "I'm not doing this in my capacity as mental health director, nor is it in any way sponsored by the government."

The project now needs funds, and Dr. Jensen asked anyone interested in making a donation to contact Dr. Zorkin in Nanaimo.

Soaring Costs Stall Museum

'Remedial Action' Awaited

By JACK FREY
Legislative Reporter

Cost of the provincial museum complex has soared so far out of line that further construction has been delayed until remedial action can be taken.

Premier Bennett warned Friday that unless some way is found to curb spiralling costs, work on the project might have to be spaced out over a longer period of time.

Latest cost figures show that the museum and archives buildings, originally estimated to cost $6,500,000, might run as high as $8,000,000—$1,500,000 more than anticipated.

QUESTION OF RESTRAINT

"This is not a question of money, but one of restraint," said the premier.

He said the government is willing to delay any project but the Peace and Columbia River power developments in order to halt spiralling construction costs in British Columbia.

A cutback in government construction projects could probably affect the future of a new mental hospital in Victoria as well as the government courthouse which has already been started in Duncan.

"If construction costs go too high, the industry has only itself to blame," Mr. Bennett said. "We asked industry and labor to exercise restraint—it is now not for government only to talk but to act."

SPACED OUT

The premier said the treasury board will probably be asked next week to make more money available for the museum.

But he warned that if revised cost estimates for the main museum construction contract are too high the work would be "spaced out."

This would mean that British Columbia's contribution to the

Troop-Laden Plane Crashes Into Slope

GENE AUTRY, Okla. (UPI)—A chartered four-engine Electra prop-jet plane carrying 32 soldiers and eight crewmen on a flight from Fort Nord, Calif. to Fort Benning, Ga., crashed and burned Friday night during a driving rain in the Oklahoma community of Gene Autry on the air route between Oklahoma City and Dallas, Texas.

First reports indicated most of those aboard had been killed. But there were some survivors.

The plane smashed into the south slope of Arbuckle Mountain, very rugged terrain with an elevation of about 900 feet. Wreckage of the plane was strewn about the mountain. The small number of survivors were badly injured, some with burns.

VERY FEW SURVIVORS

A spokesman of the Oklahoma Highway Patrol said, "From all indications, there will be very few survivors."

Rescue equipment from as far away as Texas was pushed to the scene. A unit of the Oklahoma National Guard in Ardmore was called out. U.S. Route 77 in the crash vicinity was jammed up for several miles. A dispatcher in the sheriff's office in Ardmore said he had talked to a deputy at the crash scene and been told there were between five and 10 survivors. "Get all the ambulances and station wagons and anything that can haul a body," the deputy said.

SAW A FLASH

The U.S.-owned plane was approaching the Ardmore airport to refuel when the crash occurred.

Federal Aviation Agency officials in Ardmore reported they had seen a flash northwest of the airport about the time of the crash, roughly 6:30 p.m. P.S.T.

East-West Police In Gunfight

From Reuters-AP

BERLIN (CP)—East and West German border guards fought a gun battle across the Berlin Wall Friday night as two Communist guards dashed over to the West.

As the two guards crawled through barbed-wire fences toward the wall, the East German police fired at them.

A nearby West Berlin policeman shot back. The two reached West Berlin safely.

Later East German guards opened fire at three West Berlin police cars which had driven up to the wall. A West Berlin policeman shot back.

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Yvon Dupuis, former federal minister without portfolio, was convicted Friday of influence-peddling and ordered to pay a $5,000 fine or go to jail for a year.

Mr. Justice Evender Veilleux gave the former Liberal cabinet minister 30 days in which to pay the fine.

A court of Queen's Bench jury delivered the verdict after deliberating an hour.

There was no immediate word from Paul Martineau, former Conservative mines minister who defended Dupuis, whether an appeal would be made.

End Near For TV Hour

TORONTO (CP)—Douglas Leisterman, executive producer of This Hour Has Seven Days, said early today he has no alternative but to "stop producing the program" for the CBC in view of confirmation Friday night of the disavowal of co-hosts Laurier LaPierre and Patrick Watson.

Mr. Leisterman commented in a statement shortly after arriving from the CBC board of directors' meeting in Halifax. The board confirmed the dismissals earlier Friday night.

Mr. Leisterman said he thought the board was sympathetic to his viewpoint and understood that "if the firing of the hosts was confirmed that the program would collapse, since no good means had been given."

If the Halifax confirmation means, "as it appears to," Mr. Leisterman said, that the CBC board is going to support CBC president Alphonse Ouimet and does not intend to reinstate the hosts, "I have no alternative but to stop producing the program."

"Moreover, I would expect the whole production staff of Seven Days will walk out and that Seven Days will go off the air before completion of its season."

Seven Days is not scheduled for this Sunday night. A monthly program document, has taken its place as scheduled.

Dupuis was charged with having accepted a bribe of $10,000 in 1961 in return for his influence in obtaining a provincial racetrack permit for Roch Deslauriers, a St. Johns, Que., chiropractor. The permit was never granted.

Dupuis resigned in January, 1965 following allegations of influence-peddling against him.

150 DOCUMENTS

In his closing argument, Crown Prosecutor Jean Bienvenu reviewed points of his case against Dupuis.

He said he had not only established the version of the events given by Mr. Deslauriers but also the depositions of some 45 other witnesses and the veracity of 150 documents and other evidence.

DESCRIBED AS 'FANTASY'

The evidence of Dupuis, who was principal witness for the defence, was in contradiction with other testimony and amounted to fantasy, he said.

Mr. Bienvenu said the idea of the crime took birth in the mind of Dupuis and led to his sudden change of fortune.

CONCORDANCE

There was, he said, a concordance between bank notes deposited May 8 and 9, 1961, to the account of the Science University Co., of which Dupuis was president, and the bills which made up the $10,000 which Mr. Deslauriers had obtained May 8 and 9, saying they were to give to Dupuis in order to obtain a racetrack permit.

INTERMEDIARY

The Crown prosecutor recalled the evidence of Eric Kierans, Quebec minister of health, and Guy Favreau, president of the Privy Council, and other witnesses who testified Dupuis had admitted to them he had received the $10,000, though only as an intermediary between Mr. Deslauriers and the then Quebec revenue minister, the late Paul Earl.

Mr. Bienvenu said the jury should declare Dupuis guilty of the crime of influence-peddling if its members were convinced he committed the crime.

Mountie Charged In Holdup

STELLARTON, N.S. (CP)—An RCMP corporal, with the force for 13 years, was charged here Friday with the $8,900 armed robbery of a bank in nearby Trenton Monday.

Cpl. Harry Sutherland, 32, a member of the Nova Scotia H division headquarters administrative staff in Halifax, was arraigned briefly before Magistrate W. A. Richardson, then remanded in custody to the county jail in Pictou. He will appear Monday in magistrate's court in New Glasgow.

Dressed in civilian clothes, wearing sunglasses and appearing nervous, the Mountie was escorted into the magistrate's office in the town hall by Staff Sgt. J. G. Skinner of Pictou, who laid the charge, and Sgt. D. S. Moody, head of the New Glasgow detachment.

NO SPECTATORS

Sutherland was not handcuffed. The two men flanking him were stern and snapped at photographers that they wanted no pictures taken. There were no spectators watching the scene outside the town hall.

Sutherland was silent as the magistrate read the charge and remanded him. There were only seven spectators inside the office.

LONE BANDIT

During the robbery a lone bandit wearing a stocking over his face held up a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia and held five employees at gunpoint while a cash drawer into a satchel.

RCMP said Friday the bulk of the stolen money had been recovered in the New Glasgow area.

Sutherland, a native of Plaster Rock, N.B., and married, was stationed in Halifax for the last five years and prior to that was with detachments in Stewiacke and New Glasgow.

HOUSTON (UPI)—A promising new kind of artificial heart Friday took over even more of the workload of its faltering heart of an Illinois coal miner. But the patient's wife was told her husband might be unconscious as long as a week.

Marcel L. De Rudder, 65, of Westville, Ill., was still unconscious more than 24 hours after the artificial heart was attached to him. Famous heart surgeon Dr. Michael E. DeBakey said the man may have suffered "temporary brain damage."

DeBakey told Mrs. Edna De Rudder her husband might not regain consciousness for a week.

SAW DOCTOR

A bulletin said Mrs. De Rudder conferred with Dr. DeBakey and saw her husband, although he was unconscious.

Beep-Beep Big Eyes Can't Sleep

SEATTLE (AP)—Beep-beep, it went. For many nights from a dark wooded area next to Lake McDonald, southeast of Seattle.

Neighbors wondered. Reports were made in police of red fireballs swooshing through the sky and silvery domed things clanking and grinding in the woods.

Flying saucer fans, with tales of visitors from outer space, called James Nelson, whose home is next to the lake.

A search was planned. Men and women armed with flashlights crept through the woods Thursday night.

They converged at a tree and shone their flashlights—right into the big saucer eyes of a noisy baby owl. It went beep, beep.

SMITHERS (CP)—The village of Smithers' water supply has again been threatened by fire. Chlorinating equipment at the temporary water pumping station, set up after the permanent pumping station was destroyed by fire during the Easter weekend, was put out of commission by another blaze Friday.

Court Holds the Last Ace Four of Clubs Won But Yee Ning Was Wild

ASHCROFT, B.C. (UPI)—Two men have been charged with cheating in a $9,000 poker game, under a rarely used section of the criminal code.

A businessman told the court he lost a poker hand because the dealer gave another player a card from the bottom of the deck.

Yee Ning said he had bet $1,200 on the turn of the last card in the game of five-card stud poker and his bet had been called by Fernand Theberge, 42.

Yee claimed the dealer, James Anderson, 33, then dealt Theberge the four of clubs which was sufficient to give Theberge a winning hand but Yee said the four of clubs had been on the bottom of the deck after the cards were cut before the hand started.

Court was told Yee and four other businessmen lost a total of $9,000 in the game, played in a motel room last December.

Evidence was also given that a total of 24 decks of cards were found in the accused men's car and in the motel room, 10 of which were marked.

Theberge and Anderson pleaded not guilty. Decision is to be handed down April 29.
